RANDALL OR CARLISLE.

A CLOSE FIGHT AND AN EXCITED CROWD.

Mr. Carlisle Secures a Majority of the Georgia Delegation, and Appears to be on the Up Grade—Mr. Randall Regains His Confidence—The Minor Offices, Etc.

Special to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, November 30.—The history of congress does not show such a canvass for the speakership as that now raging. I fear that bad feeling is rising in it towards the closing hours of its canvass. Georgia changed the drift undoubtedly yesterday, when Messrs. Blount, Hammond, Reese and Crisp arrived and declared strongly for Mr. Carlisle, while Mr. Nicholls was the only Georgian supporter then here for Mr. Randall. Following close on the depressing effect of this announcement came the action of the Illinois delegation, withdrawing Mr. Springer, and pledging its solid support to Mr. Carlisle. I notice that Springer, Morrison, Holman, and every other democratic candidate from the west that aspired to the leadership in the last house, is against Mr. Randall. Most of them are men with grievances and the rest are jealous of the prominence he has attained, and would win by the election for the speakership. The southern men have been very kind in their tone toward Mr. Randall, whether they intend to vote for him or not. What opposition has come to him from the south is based solely on his tariff views. But while he stands firmly on the Onio platform, Mr. Carlisle seems to be shaving closer and closer to the same position. It cannot be called a sectional fight, though the bulk of the south is against Randall. This morning Messrs. Hardeman, Clements, Buchanan and Candler came in, making the Georgia delegation complete, except Turner, who will be here to-morrow, and is known to be for Carlisle.

HOW THE GEORGIA DELEGATION STANDS.

The Georgia delegation stands as follows on the speakership: Messrs. Hammond, Blount, Reese, Crisp, Buchanan and Turner, are known to be for Carlisle, and are working for him hard; Mr. Clements is thought to be for him. Messrs. Hardeman, Nichols and Candler are for Randall. Mr. Hammond is sick, and will not probably be able to be at the caucus Saturday night. John S. Barbour, of Virginia, claims that Randall is certain to be nominated, but the current seems to be in favor of Carlisle. The southern men claim the speaker, the clerk, the doorkeeper and postmaster of the house, and have conceded to the northern democrats the sergeant-at-arms. The leading democrats here from the north think the democrats in the house make a fatal mistake in making the tariff a party question, and say there is no hope to reform it, because anything that the house will do will be checked by the senate and by the president, and that it is suicidal to raise the issue when it can do no good.

MR. CARLISLE'S VIEWS.

It was stated to-day that Mr. Carlisle had told Mr. Oats, of Alabama, that he was not in favor of any further agitation of the tariff question during his term as speaker. Mr. Blount says this is not correct; that Mr. Carlisle is in favor of making a vigorous campaign on the tariff, and wants to push reforms on it all the time, and to make the democratic party take a square position on it in the next presidential race. The men here who are loudest on that line are from states like Illinois, Michigan, Iowa and Wisconsin, which don't represent the possibility of a single vote in the next year's contest for president. They are not entitled to the same consideration as democrats from those doubtful states of the north, who come here and declare that the election of Randall will help us in their country. The New York delegation on a test between Carlisle and Randall will give the latter all its twenty-one votes, except Hewitt, Dorsheimer, Slocum and Perry Belmont.

A RANDALL RALLY.

Confidence seemed to be strong for Carlisle all day, but to-night the Randall men have rallied wonderfully, and one hour ago I saw three bets made at Willard's of $500 to $350 on Randall. O. O. Stealey, correspondent of the Courier-Journal, bet $1,000 on Carlisle yesterday, and last night John Trainer, of Washington, pushed up $3,000 against Joe Rickey, of St. Louis, that Randall would win. Money is freely offered to-night, and a Randall man at the National to-day said he would cover $20,000 by midnight if the other side would produce it. This sort of talk is of value to neither side, and has little effect.

REPUBLICAN OPPOSITION TO RANDALL.

Every expression from republican source has expressed pleasure at any prospect of Randall's defeat. To day, Mr. W. C. Morrill, of Atlanta, called on Commissioner Loring, who asked him how the speakership contest would result Mr. Morrill said he thought Randall would be elected. Loring replied: "I hope not. With the other man the democrats could not carry a single state north of Mason and Dixon's line." Bill Chandler is said to be jubilant over what he believes to be the pending mistake of the party, and William will probably be "king bee" in the republican swarm next year.

RANDALL'S CONFIDENCE.

At 10 o'clock to-night Mr. Randall told me he felt surer of his success than he ever did, and certainly he looked like a man who meant what he said. There is no doubt that Carlisle will lead him on the first ballot, but they will not be far apart, and Cox will hold the balance of power. The pressure on his men is enormous from the north to force him to Randall. The New York delegation agreed to-night to stick to Cox, but that means nothing, for the race must narrow after a few ballots to Carlisle and Randall. Certain it is at midnight that the Randall men are better in hand and fully as cheerful as their opponent.

THE MINOR OFFICES.

Leedom's prospecuve defeat of Thompson for sergeant-at-arms is taken here as a presage of Pendleton's downfall before Durbin Ward's candidacy for the senate in Ohio. General Field has Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina solid for doorkeeper, and will be elected. Between Clark and Atkins for clerk there is little reason for preference, so far as their chances are concerned. A dozen candidates are after the postmastership. Neither side will sleep much to-night, and before sundown to-morrow some of the finest work in the history of American politics will be done.

TWO DAYS MORE WOULD FIX IT.

If the race had two days longer to go, Randall would win beyond all doubt. Whether he can break the strong array now against him between now and the assembling of the caucus to-morrow night, remains to be seen; his best posted friends say he can. Henry Watterson has a letter in the New York World to-day strongly criticising Gordon's position for Randall. Senator Brown came this morning, and Senator Colquit is expected to-morrow. Washington never had a livelier opening to a session, and it is conceded that the lines for next year's fight are to be laid here in the next few months. Colonel Hammond was quite sick last night, but is much better to-day, and his physicians say will soon be up.

THE ACTION OF THE REPUBLICANS.

The republican members of the house will meet in caucus at two p. m., to-morrow afternoon, to select candidates for house officers.

THE ACTION OF THE NEW YORK DELEGATION.

WASHINGTON, November 30.—After a long session the New York delegation agreed that General Slocum would present Cox's name, and that the delegation would stick to him as long as the issue was between him and Carlisle, but that when any other issue was raised, each member should go as he pleased. This action is received gladly by the Randall men, who claim sixteen certain and seventeen probably of the twenty-one New York voters. That delegation hold the situation in its grasp, and there is considerable talk of a dark horse since its action. Springer and Holman are both out of the question, but Eaton, of Connecticut, and Converse, of Ohio, are freely discussed as possibilities at midnight. However, this talk will fall before to-morrow's hard pressure on the old lines, and the caucus will have to choose between Randall and Carlisle. F. H. R.

COX'S HOLD ON NEW YORK.

The Delegation Apparently Paves the Way for a Dark Horse.

WASHINGTON, November 30.—Seventeen democratic members of the New York delegation met in conference at Mr. Cox's rooms at 12:30 to-day, and remained together until 1:45, at which time they took a recess until 8 o'clock. No resolutions were passed, and no formal action of any kind was taken, everything having been postponed for the evening session. The absentees were Messrs. Hutchins, Alf Hutchins, Arnett Rogers and Robinson. The New York members who were at the consultation say that the entire delegation, with the probable exception of two members, will support Cox until the last. Muller, one of the dissenting members, promised to give a fina answer as to his determination at the meeting to-night.

An important incident of the speakership contest to-day was the action of the New York delegation with respect to Mr. Cox's candidacy. That the vote of this delegation was considered important, not only in its direct relation to Cox's fight, but in its bearing on Randall's chances, was evident from the fact that until the result of the New York conference was made known, Randall's lieutenants would only talk in the most general terms of the situation.

ACCESSIONS TO CARLISLE

Carlisle's friends, however, appeared to look for nothing from New York, and had only a curious interest in the result of the conference. They said they could win without a vote from either New York or Pennsylvania. The New York men had an informal meeting in the afternoon, at which nothing was determined. This evening another meeting was held in the room adjoining Cox's headquarters at Willard's hotel. Twenty members were expected to attend but only sixteen put in an appearance. The session lasted more than two hours, and Cox announced, as a result of the meeting, that the sixteen members present would support him in his fight. It was learned, however, from members of the delegation that upon the proposition to vote for Cox until released by him from any obligation to do so, only eleven votes were cast in the affirmative, The other five members present would not pledge themselves to vote for Cox throughout, although they expresed their willingness to go into the caucus as his supporters. The second choice of those five, it is understood, is Randall. Mr. Cox said to-night, after the meeting of the New York delegation, that he was still in the fight. He spoke with an assumption of cheerfulness, but with some apparent bitterness of his experiences in the contest.

Mr. Carlisle's forces received several accessions to-day, some of them unexpected. One vote from Florida and one from Louisiana that have heretofore been counted for Randall, were entered on the Carlisle list to-day. The gentlemen who will poll their votes are calling on Mr. Carlisle to assure him of their support. Mr. Carlisle also received assurances of eight of the ten members of the Georgia delegation, two of the three members of the West Virginia delegation, and four members of the Massachusetts delegation, that they would vote for him from first to last. Representative Follett, of Ohio, who was said to be wavering and inclined towards Randall, called upon Carlisle to-night and pledged himself to vote for the latter until the last ballot. It was stated also at Carlisle's headquarters that the Wisconsin delegation, which was placed last night in the Randall doubtful list, was pledged to Carlisle; that the latter could be elected without a vote from New York, Pennsylvania or Ohio, although three votes from the last mentioned state were changed for him.

THE RANDALL HEADQUARTERS.

The maximum vote conceded to Randall at the Carlisle headquarters is 65. There was a larger crowd at Randall's rooms to-night than last night, but most of the increase was due to the arrival of friends of that gentleman from Pennsylvania The congressmen who were present, besides the Pennsylvania members, were mostly from the southern states. Ohio was well represented, however, and there was two or three Indianians present at times. The gentlemen authorized to speak for Randall held to the figures given last night—ninety-four votes for their chief They disputed Carlislels claim to the votes of Wisconsin and other western states, and said the majority of the Ohio and Iowa delegations would be found voting for Randall. They considered Cox still in the fight, and allowed him from thirty to forty votes. The principal part of his strength, they said, would go to their candidate when Cox withdrew.

There was a renewal to-night of the talk of an arrangement between the friends of Cox and Randall, and this talk was emphasized by the flitting to and fro between the Randall and Cox headquarters of professed supporters of those two gentlemen. The Ohio members were conspicuous in the number of those who were to be found, first at one place and then at the other. Eight of the Ohio members are sure to vote for Randall, and it is almost equally certain that he will get ten of them, as soon as Cox is out of the fight. There has been considerable talk, principally by Carlisle's men, of an effort to secure a viva voce vote in the caucus. Mr. Willis, Mr Carlisle's principal lieutenant, explained this to night by stating that some of Carlisle's friends, who are from states in which the viva voce form of voting is used at all elections, urge that it be adopted in caucus. He says they use the argument that as this contest is not a personal one but a contest over principles, the constituents of the members have the right to know how they vote. Willis said he did not know whether or not the friends of viva voce voting would have strength enough in the caucus to secure the adoption of that method of voting for speaker.

DEPARTMENT NEWS.

The Twenty-Four Hour Clocks—Crumbaugh's Successor Appointed.

WASHINGTON, November 30.—Since the adoption of the standard time in this country about 400 applications have been filed with the patent office for clock dials and other devices intended to present the twenty-four hours in a convenient manner and unduly crowding the figures together. A large number of these applications have been rejected by the patent office upon evidence found in musty old volumes that Prince Soltykoff once possessed a watch made in the year 1547, upon the dial of which appeared the hours from one to twenty-four, arranged in two concentric circles.

The president to-day appointed Edward Farley to be collector of internal revenue for the second district of Kentucky, vice Samuel R. Crumbaugh suspended.

It is estimated that the decrease of public debt for the month of November will be about $1,750,000. This slight decrease is due to the payment of about $12,000,000 for pensions.

THE REPUBLICAN SIDE.

EX-SPEAKER KEIFER WANTS VINDICATION.

William Walter Phelps Advises the Ex-Speaker Not to Press Himself Into Prominence—The Reply of the Gentleman From Ohio—Other Political Gossip of Interest.

WASHINGTON, November 30.—William Walter Phelps, of New Jersey, arrived in Washington this evening. In conversation with a reporter he expressed some surprise at the importance given to his recent letter to ex-Speaker Keifer. It contained, he said, nothing except a suggestion that Mr. Keifer could do his party great good, were he disposed to tell his friends not to vote for his nomination in the caucus. It was neither a threat nor a command nor a request, but a simple suggestion. Nor were the reasons given, he thought, uncomplimentary to the ex-speaker. They would apply to all who, during the last two years had held a position in the party of sufficient prominence to excite enmities. The letter was not marked "personal" nor "private" nor "confidential," but was a letter on a public subject, and as such could be discussed with propriety by all who were interested in its subject. Keifer's reply, he said, was kindly enough, but he feared that personal friends might claim that his renomination was necessary as a vindication for him. He (Phelps) still thought the welfare of the party was of greater importance than kindness of this kind, which was never complete and satisfactory. He proposed a method of procedure which, in his opinion, would in the end do the party no harm and which, while it might not give Keifer all that he wished, would not have the appearance of giving to another what Keifer's friends claimed was his by right, that was that republican members should have no caucus, or if the caucus were held, that it should make no nomination.

If the representatives, however, still insist upon making some nomination, Robinson's name had been suggested as one commanding many obvious advantages as the governor of Massachusetts. He would not be in Washington to claim the leadership in the party on the strength of this indorsement.

The correspondence between Phelps and Keifer is given to the public to-day. A full and correct summary of Phelps's first letters has already been telegraphed. Keifer's reply is very long and of vigorous language. He does not accept Phelps's proposition.

THE SENATORS ECLIPSED.

An Era in Which the Representative Is a Bigger Man Than the Senator.

Special to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, November 29.—Up to a few days ago I had supposed that the United States senatorship was the highest office an American citizen could hold. In my mind it had not even paled before the presidency, for the history of that station shows a succession of circumstance and luck, with only occasional gleams of genius to light the monotony of its mediocrity. Take out Washington, Jefferson, the elder Adams, Jackson, and Lincoln, and what are the men who have inhabited the white house? They have been turncoats like Tyler, white livers like Buchanan, political zeros like Pierce, corruptionists like Garfield or tricksters like Arthur. Long ago my youthful faith gave way on the presidency and the rude hand of iconoclasm dashed that idol to the ground. But I had still believed in the senate, though I had seen a boor like Tabor and a drunkard like Lapham, whirling in its rosewood chairs. I am afraid this idol, too, must go. Surely it must if I judge of the consideration which is paid to senators here just now. The all-absorbing interest of the speakership has concentrated attention on the house, and nobody cares what the other end of the capitol plots, or plans, or thinks. I have been no little amused at the insignificance of the average senator as he has dropped in during the last few days. Nobody meets him at the train. The porter refuses his check, and the cabmen spatters him with mud as he drives to catch a waiting representative. He goes to the hotel and registers his name with the wildest senatorial flourish, but the clerk don't know him or care to waste a moment on him. At the table waiters desert him half fed to attend a representative, and in the crowded lobby he hears a banquet hall deserted." Nobody calls on him. The newspapers don't publish his arrival, and his name is even eliminated from the hotel directory of each day. Poor, pitiful semblance of office and power, he is left to commune with his own convictions of greatness and to sigh for the downfall of the republic.

But let the least of the little men who hold seats in the house flop off a train and he lands on the platform a hero. Randall men, Carlisle men, Cox men surround him and assure him that they have been pining for his arrival. A carriage awaits him at the depot door and at his hotel a warm supper steams out its welcome, while the intermediate cocktail promptly gets in its work. Reporters await him, and the door of his room is reached through a file of the officious lieutenants who propose to manage the speakership contest for the several champions. If his name is Jones and his state the obscurest star in the cluster that glitters on the flag, he is a hero and a lord. So he will be until next Monday. Then how he will fall! The senator whom he wouldn't notice to-day will not know him then and his poor little vote will die on the record as he calls it and he will never be heard of again until he goes out and tries to whoop up the boys next summer. This is the congressman's golden day and I have been amused to see how some of them stand this sudden glare of glory.

There are a great many young men in the house. Most of them are democrats. God help the party! The talk about the rule of "Young America" in politics is pretty enough but when the representatives of that idea get into the focus of national notoriety they generally shrink into insignificance or fly into noisy and damaging self-assertion. You don't often see a young congressman like John Kenna, of West Virginia, who goes into the senate next Monday, with a clean business record and not a silly thing written against him in the house below. Sentiment is filtering out of politics fast, and it will be a good day for us all when its last sediment is settled and cast amid the trash and rubbish of the past.

The speakership contest has been the liveliest ever known in Washington. Two months ago Mr. Randall was hopelessly behind, and he knew it. Still he worked with that firm energy and that serene courage which are characteristic of the man, hoping that some help would buoy him before the goal was reached. The New York election came. It doomed all flippant threats as to the reopening of the tariff question at this session, and in the lurid light of disaster, showed the democracy the plain path of its duty. The money power controls New York as it controls Indiana. To offend it is death to any party no matter what its principles are. The talk of principle is largely slush and the parties of to-day stand so near together that the gentleman who votes the republican ticket in Massachusetts is actuated by precisely the same motive which influence the gentleman who votes the democratic ticket in Georgia.

I talked at dinner to-day with Colonel Evins who represents the Greenville district, of South Carolina. He spoke warmly for Carlisle and said we must battle for principle. I asked him what principle was interested in this race after Mr. Carlisle had shaved down so close to the Ohio platform and to the stand which Randall had originally taken. He spoke of the offense to the south in Randall's election. I am at a loss to see how any man who knows the history of the south can ever feel for Samuel J. Randall aught but gratitude for his hopeless and heroic battle in our behalf in reconstruction times. The Virginia election congealed the solid south closer and firmer, I think, than it ever was before. What we want is not a man to carry the south. Anybody can do that. Tilden with his business methods carried it. Hancock carried it with his own folly, an old Barnum's stupidity staring the section in the face. The south to the democratic party occupies, as I think, a heroic attitude. It comes, and with absolute trust, gives its vote. If it be said that the northern democrats have never done anything for them, the reply is ready that in the north the only friendly voice yet spoken, the only friendly hand yet reached has come from the democracy. The miserable Mahone business in Virginia is over and the expressions dropped here every day indicate how human nature holds its own and despises treachery and meanness in silence while they are in success, but in open condemnation when they fail.

THE BUSINESS WORLD.

Small Orders in Manchester—The Failures of the Week in America.

PITTSBURG, November 30.—The Iron Age of this week publishes a number of letters from nail manufacturers giving their views on the present condition and future prospects of the nail trade. A member of the Western Nail association says the manufacturers will control the production by suspension. If the stoppage of five weeks will not effect the object another shut-down will follow. Another manufacturer considers the outlook for 1884 decidedly gloomy, while an eastern manufacturer expresses an opinion that the great increase of factories was caused by the strike in Pittsburg two years ago, as during that time a boom was created, resulting in the organization of many new plants. The president of the Cable Iron and Nail company, of Aurora, Ind., says that the nail trade is undergoing a complete revolution by the use of wrought scraps, by which nails are manufactuced for 50 cents less per keg than from pig metal.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., November 30.—It is reported that the Winchester Arms company, of New Haven, the Union Metallic Cartridge company, of Bridgeport, and the large cartridge company in Lowell, have combined, and will in the future act together as a syndicate, controlling the cartridge manufacturing industry of the country. The Union company, of Bridgeport, employs 1,500 men, and the Winchester company nearly as many, independent of the large number working on the guns. It is reported that W. W. Converse, president of the Winchester company, will be president of the new concern.

LONDON, November 30.—The Manchester Guardian, in its commercial article, says there is an extremely small demand for goods, especially in the India and China departments, and business approaches a state of suspension. The strong position of the cotton market constrains producers to adhere firmly to their quotations. It is feared that the price of raw material will rise still higher.

NEW YORK, November 30.—In the last seven days business failures throughout the United States and Canada reported to R. G. Dun & Co., mercantile agency, number 242, as against 247 the previous week. The failures continue to be light in New England and the middle states, and numerous in the western, southern, Pacific states and in Canada.

GLASGOW, November 30.—The liabilities of Dobie & Co., ship builders of Govan, who failed on Tuesday, are 80,000 pounds.

The workingmen of the Dolmellington iron company at Dolmellington, have resumed work at a reduction of ten per cent in their wages.

ACCIDENT AND DISASTER.

The Fatal Ending of a Baltimore Duck Shooting Party.

BALTIMORE, November 30.—A party of gentlemen in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, went down the river duck shooting this morning. Among them were Perry, Shafer, chief of the west bound freight department and James H. Houston, chief engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio freight department. About 9 o'clock, when about seven miles from the city a flock of ducks flew over the stern of the boat. Shafer, who was in the bow, rose and fired. At the same time Houston, who was sitting amidships also rose and the contents of Shafer's gun struck him in the head, carrying off the whole crown, causing death immediately. Suafer was terribly prostrated by the affair. Houstin was 25 years of age and leaves a family. Shafer and Houston were brothers-in-laws.

WORCESTER, November 30.—The injured by the accident near North Worcester, last Wednesday, on the Boston, Barre and Gardner railroad all survived this morning.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., November 30.—The elevator of the Kansas Central railroad was burned last night. About 40,000 bushels of wheat and barley was consumed The buildings cost $40,000. The contents were insured to about one-third their value.

PARIS, November 30.—A collision occurred on the railway near St. Wern, department of the Ille et Villiane, yesterday by which eighteen persons were killed and fifteen seriously injured.

JOSEPH SEWELL'S JERK.

A Cool Murderer Goes Through the Trap Without Shrinking.

SAN JOSE, Cala., November 30.—Joseph Jewell, one of the three men who last March murdered M. P. Renoden, in order to get possession of his earnings, amounting to say $24,000, was hanged here to-day. He said: "I don't know how I came to commit the deed. It was not for the money. I never needed that. It is a mystery that only God can explain." When the black cap was put on he said: "Put it on square: you've got it twisted." His neck was not broken by the fall, and several seconds afterwards he made an effort as if to raise himself up, and cried out: "Oh." In ten minutes he was pronounced dead. Of his two accomplices one turned state's evidence and is now serving out a light sentence and the other is under sentence of death.

A Lake Disaster.

LONDON, November 30.—The Daily News's special dispatch from Toronto says the crew of the lumber barge Hamilton J. Mills was rescued by the life saving crew at Stangeen Point, Georgian bay, this morning, after exposure to the elements for two days, and the barge was in tow of a propeller, but cut loose and became water-logged, and drifting helplessly. The men on the barge were dead from exposure. The barges Hungerford and Sweepstake, of the same tow, were cut loose at the same time, and it is supposed that they have gone down with all on board.

The Losses Estimated.

BOSTON, November 30.—The latest estimates place the loss on the burned woolen mills at Saxonville at $800,000. The mills, machinery and stock had partial insurance of $105,000.

O'DONNELL'S TRIAL.

THE DEMEANOR OF THE MAN WHO REMOVRD CAREY.

The Son of the Murdered Man on the Stand—A Very Contradictory Witness—Mrs. Carey's Widow's Weeds—A New Witness Introduced—Other Matters of Interest.

LONDON, November 30.—The trial of Patrick O'Donnell, for the murder of James Carey, began at ten o'clock this morning before Judge George Denison, in Old Baily police court. Two sheriffs and several aldermen of London occupied seats on the bench. The room in which the trial is being held is small, and was crowded with spectators, including several ladies. All awaited the opening of the trial amid suppressed excitement. The approaches to the court-room were thronged. No person was admitted to the room without tickets. Charles Russell, M. P., and A. M. Sullivan, Solicitor Guy and Roger A. Pryor were present as counsel for O'Donnell, and Sir Henry James, attorney-general, and Messrs. Palon and R S. Wright appeared for the government. O'Donnell was brought to the dock from the adjoining prison, surrounded by the police. The prisoner seemed unconcerned. He stood very erect at first, then bowed his head, clasped his hands quietly, cast glances at his counsel, and closely watched the jurors as they were called. After the charge had been read O'Donnell took his seat, and leaned over, whispered to Mr. Guy for a few moments. The jury is a very intelligent one, and is composed of men of middle and mature age. There was no excitement outside the court-house. There were but few people there, and they mostly of the respectable class. A large police force was on duty, guarding the court.

THE OPENING OF THE CASE.

Charles Russell, of O'Donnell's counsel, made a demand that the witnesses be excluded from the courtroom. The demand was granted. The jury having been called, the clerk of the court asked O'Donnell if he had any objection to any of them. O'Donnell replied: "I trust to my solicitor for that." While the jury was being completed, O'Donnell seemed amused and exchanged greetings with Mr. Pryor. None of the jurymen were challenged. Sir Henry James opened for the government. He described Carey's departure from England and his voyage to Capetown, and said there was no evidence to prove that the prisoner embarked on the steamer Kinfouns Castle to kill Carey, but a new witness, Mr Corbitt, would testify that at Capetown he gave the prisoner, at his urgent request, a rough sketch of Carey, and the prisoner remarked upon receiving it: "I'll shoot him."

O'Donnell listened closely to the addresses of the attorney general. He has been allowed the use of tobacco, which he chews freely in dock. James Parish, steward of the steamer Melrose Castle, repeated the evidence he gave at the preliminary examination.

Mr. Russell cross-examined the witness. He insisted that O'Donnell was sitting down when he fired the shot at Carey, who stood leaning against the corner of the cabin two yards away. Carey might easily have reached O'Donnell. but he made no gesture to seize him. Witness saw no pistol other than O'Donnell's. He did not see young Carey go to his father's berth, and only knew by heresay that his father's pistol was found upon the boy.

There was much discussion between counsel concerning the correctness of plans of the cabin of the Melrose Castle, all of which the judge declared to be faulty. At one time Judge Denman went into the witness box and asked Witness Parish to explain the position of the tables and seats. The witness said that all the plans were in court. O'Donnell appeared to be greatly interested in this episode, watching the judge narrowly. Judge Denman cautioned Parish to be careful in giving replies to inquiries, especially regarding his position when the shots were fired.

Charles Jones, boatswain of the Melrose Castle, was called to the witness stand, and rehearsed the testimony which he gave at the examination. He was almost sure, but refused to swear, that O'Donnell's words were: "I did not do it." Judge Denman examined O'Donnell's revolver and placed it by his side on his desk.

THE INFORMER'S SON ON THE STAND.

There was dead silence in the courtroom when Thomas Carey, son of James Carey, stepped into the witness box. He gave his evidence promptly and cooly, but was sometimes told to speak more distinctly. Occasionally he would consider the question well before replying, and when he failed to understand an inquiry, he would shake his head. Judge Denman questioned him in regard to his father's position when shot, and the judge was especially assiduous in taking notes of young Carey's evidence. When the bag and revolver of James Carey were produced in court, and placed in the hands of the witness to identify, he weighed the weapon and looked down the barrel. O'Donnell scrutinized young Carey narrowly, when he said that he was not positive whether O'Donnell, after the shooting, said "shake hands, Mrs Carey. I was sent to do it," or "I had to do it." He further testified; "I went for father's revolver and kept it in my pocket because father was unable to use it." The court then adjourned for lunch. Young Carey was ordered to remain in the courtroom.

UNDER CROSS EXAMINATION.

After the recess young Carey concluded his direct testimony. On being cross-examined he said that he had stated at the Bow street examination that Mr. Parish came from the cabin when the first shot was fired; that statement he said was untrue. He had not then understood the question. The witness was severely questioned concerning other inconsistencies between his present evidence and that which he gave at the Bow street examination. The evidence was all directed to testing the truthfulness of minor details of his story for the purpose of affording a means of judging the credibility of the main facts. The frequency with which the witness contradicted himself caused much amusement in court and the spectators to be amazed at his unabased demeanor and effrontery. He declared that O'Donnell fired his pistol with his left hand, although the other witness had stated that he fired it with his right hand, and the witness finally admitted that he was in doubt as to which hand O'Donnell used. He acknowledged that he had told Mr. Beecher, second officer of the steamer, that he took his father's pistol to keep it out of his mother's way. On being asked how this statement agreed with his previous statement that he got it from his father, he declared that both statements were true. He denied that he had told Walter Young at Port Elizabeth, that his father had his pistol when he was killed.

Walter Young was brought into court when the witness said he did not recollect him. Carey denied that Young had asked him why he did not kill O'Donnell with his fathers pistol at the time of the murder, and that he replied: "I ran for the pistol." It was not there, father had it

Mrs. Carey, widow of the murdered man, was sworn. She was dressed in deep mourning and spoke in a subdued voice. She repeated the testimony she gave at the preliminary examination. She repeated that O'Donnell exclaimed that he was sent to do it. The cross examination of Mrs. Carey was very brief, and no new evidence was elicited thereby.

CUBBITT'S DISCLOSURES.

Thomas Cubbitt deposed that he was a passenger on the steamer Kilfauns Castle with "Power." He was unaware that "Power" was "James Carey," until they arrived at Capetown. He was then shown a supplement of the Weekly Freeman's Journal, which contained a portrait of Carey, and accounts of his connection with the Irish invincibles. He recognized the portrait as that of "Power." He showed the portrait to O'Donnell, who remarked, "I'll shoot him." O'Donnell asked for and the witness gave him the portrait. On cross examination Cubbitt said when O'Donnell remarked, "I'll shoot him," he spoke in a pleasant manner, and witness attached no importance to the remark at the time.

The orangemen, round about, have decided that unless the torchlight procession of the nationalists, announced for to-morrow evening, is forbidden, they will march to Newry to protect the protestant quarter of the city. There was rioting here last evening. Several of the participants were injured.

THE CAPERS OF CRIME.

The Story of a Street Car Found Standing On a Cincinnati Street.

CINCINNATI, November 30.—At one o'clock this morning a street car was found by a pedestrian standing still in the Walnut Hills section of the city. As he approached the car a man stepped from it, fired a shot and ran. The driver and the conductor of the car were found on the floor bleeding and unconscious. The car was driven to the stables by the finder, who called a surgeon, the men remaining unconscious. The wounds being in the abdomen are supposed to be necessarily fatal. There are no witnesses to the shooting, but parties who got off the car before the shooting tell of a quarrel between the conductor and a passenger, and this passenger is supposed to be the man who did the shooting.

Harry Shafer, a young man in the employ of Nerrie, Verbiage & Co., has been arrested and confesses that he shot the men. He says he had been drinking, but was not intoxicated; that the conductor quarreled with him about his fare and threatened to whip him at the end of the route; that the conductor an the driver at the end of the route assaulted him, and that he fired in self defense. The driver, John Cosgrove, who has since died, made an anti-mortem statement, that Shafer was fighting in the car with the conductor, and he tried to help the conductor, when Shafer fired Swift, the conductor, may recover. He says that Shafer was drunk and refused to get off at the end of the route; that he tried to put him off, whereupon Shafer began firing.

BALTIMORE, November 30.—About noon today. Mrs Riall, a married woman living on Biddle street cut the throats of her two girl children, aged respectfully four years and eighteen months, and then cut her own throat. Both of the children soon died, and the mother, though yet alive, is not expected to survive She says she does not want to live. Domestic trouble was the cause. The family occupied a good position. Mrs. Riall is about twenty eight years old.

Early this morning the mother of Mrs. Riall stopped at her room, and learned from her daughter that she did not feel well. Later she called again, when Mrs. Riall asked for a cup of coffee. The mother thought she detected the smell of gas, but Mrs. Riall said it was a mistake. The door was locked, and she refused to open it. Mrs Marsh, mother of Mrs. Riall, became alarmed, and the police were notified, and an officer went to the house. Mrs. Riall still refused to open the door and it was broken open. Mrs. Riall was found standing in the middle of the room in her night dress, and blood running from her throat. Her little children were both dead, lying on the bed. She had cut all the arteries and veins in the left wrist of each, and they soon bled to death. Mrs. Riall, when discovered, could not speak, but with a pencil wrote that she did not want to live. Her husband is a traveling salesman and was absent from home when the tragedy was enacted. Mrs. Riall has never shown any evidences of insanity, but complained very much because of the long and frequent absences of her husband from home. She is alive tonight, but there is no probability that she can recover.

GEORGIA GOSSIP.

SHORT TALKS WITH THE SCRIBES OF THE COUNTY PRESS.

The Cotton Futures Decision Approved—Burke County Men Arrested—A Negro Shot—Madison as a Mining County—Runaway Marriages—Negro Fear of a Famine, Etc.

The recent decision of the supreme court on the legality of cotton future contracts is generally commended by the state press as sound public policy as well as good law. The Savannah News says that "decisions like this will have a dampening effect on the cotton future business, but will not break it up. It will make future brokers, however, cautious about doing business for customers who have not advanced safe margins in actual cash. It would, perhaps, be a blessing to the country if the future business could be broken up. It takes millions of dollars out of the south every year. A very large per cent of the young men who are employed in one capacity and another in the cotton business, waste all of their savings in margins on cotton futures, and many of them are led into committing dishonest acts to et money to continue their speculations. The number of business men who are ruined every year by this sort of speculation is very large. Very few make any considerable sum, and when they are fortunate they generally continue to speculate until they have lost all they made and, perhaps, their original capital besides. The very rich men are the ones who make the money. They can afford to carry their contracts if the market is against them until it turns in their favor. Their success is shown by the enormous fortunes they are accumulating. Each one of these big fortunes, however, represent thousands who have been made penniless."

Hamp Stansell and John and William Bell became engaged in a difficulty at the house of the former, in Gordon, and the two latter were severely cut across their hands.

Calhoun Times: Dr. W. J. Reeves has a turkey hen which has just hatched a brood of young ones, and if she succeeds in raising this set it will be about fifty she has raised this season. She is a valuable turkey.

Thursday Mr. E. A. C. Hannah, depot agent at Reeves station, was out shooting at a mark with a double barrelled shot gun, and the stock bursted from an over charge of powder, the breech-pin striking Mr. Hannah in the forehead just above the eyes, crushing in his skull, and making a very serious wound, though it is not thought fatal.

Athens Banner: Madison county is now looming up as one of the mining counties of Georgia. We have received several letters in regard to the mica mine of Messrs. Dudley & Drake. Old Madison has plenty of mineral and we hope to see it developed. We were shown yesterday some specimens of black lead (graphite) from Brown's place which is said to be a very large solid vein. We hope this black lead mine can be turned to some use, as it is very plentiful in Madison county.

Barnesville Gazette: People will get married, when they make up their minds to do so, no matter what the old folks say and no matter how inclement the weather may be. Last Sunday while "the advesperate clouds of heaven approximated colligation" and the weeping weather was shedding tears freely, Mr Charles Adams and Miss Sallie Balgar, tackled the mud and slush to Zebulon, where they purchased license from Judge Harry Wells and required him to tie Hymen's halter about their necks and swing them into conjugal eternity.

Mr. Maxey Jordan in the western portion of Pike county, came very near getting his gin house burned Monday. Some one he supposes had put matches in the cotton, and one of them struck fire, but by prompt work the house was saved.

Mr. F. L. McWhorter, superintendent of Mr. J. McWhorter's gin, at Antioch, while examining the machinery, got his hand caught between the belt and the pulleys, mashing it terribly. At the same time Mr. J. B. Crowley, at his gin above Crawford got his fingers caught by the saws, cutting three of them pretty badly. We hope each may soon be well.

Oglethorpe Echo: On Sunday morning last Mr. S. C. Arnold, of the lower part of this county, arose in his usual health seemingly and seated himself by the fire. In a few minutes he called for a drink of water, but when it was handed him he remarked that he could not drink it and fell over and expired with something like a spasm. It will be remembered that this was the gentleman bitten by a mad dog last year, and who sought the efficacy of a madstone. While this bite might have caused his death, it is thought that heart disease was his ailment, as he has been slightly complaining with his heart for two weeks previous. The family have our sympathies in their sudden bereavement.

Mr. Jabez Poyner, of Oglethorpe, got out a warrant and had arrested Turner Bolton, colored, living on his place, charged with the burning of Mr. P.'s barn, several weeks since. He was committed to jail and in default of bond was incarcerated. The evidence against him is strong.

The Echo publishes the following significant card, which is signed by Messrs. Phil. W. Davis and H. W. Johnson:

The adjustment of the difficulty that recently occurred in Lexington between Colonel R. B. Mathews and Mr. Joseph Cofer, having been submitted to the undersigned, we take pleasure in stating the cause of the difficulty has been fully explained and that it was only through a misunderstanding between the above gentlemen that the difficulty occurred. We take pleasure in further stating that the difficulty has been amicably settled and that it has been honorably settled to the satisfaction of both the above gentlemen.

Mr. H. Heyman, of West Point, is the kind of a father-in-law for a young man, with ambition to select. He has recently presented each of his married dahghters with a fine Chickering piano.

West Point Enterprise: Mr. W. H. White has gone to Griffin to bring back four fine registered Jersey cows, bought of Mr. King there. He has a fine registered Jersey bull purchased of Mr. Orme, and will raise some fine thoroughbred Jerseys. We are glad to know our people are manifesting such an interest in raising fine cows.

Cartersville Free Press: George M. Kuykendall, an old man who lives up on Salacoa creek, in this county, came near meeting a horrible death last night about 10 o'clock. From what we can learn, Kuykendall became intoxicated yesterday and last night was quite drunk. At the time mentioned above he got on the railroad track and staggered up to about half way between the court house and depot and laid down. Soon the 10 o'clock up freight passed knocking him off the track, after amputating three of his fingers on his right hand, and cutting two terrible gashes on his head. The unfortunate man was taken to the Bartow house, where he is now receiving the best of medical treatment at the hands of Drs. Baker and Young. Kuykendall tells a story which, if true, puts the latter in an entirely different light. He says he had quarreled with a negro who followed him up the track and struck him down with some heavy instrument and left him for dead on the track. This tale is not believed by many, as Kuykendall was seen very much intoxicated after night and thoroughly irresponsible for his actions. Any way, he has two bad looking gashes on his head which will give him trouble for some time to come.

Sandersville Herald: Rev. C. T. Smith handed us last week a nice stalk of ribbon cane with fourteen well matured joints. He informed us that he had just ground up at Mr. Henry Smith's near Pleasant Plains, a quantity of cane, and had made about 800 gallons of good syrup in the course of the fifteen days that he passed so pleasantly among the good people of that vicinity.

Savannah News: United States Deputy Marshal Skinner arrived in this city yesterday with Messrs. B. Haeseler and W. E. Zarn, the jailer and deputy jailer of Burke county, whom he arrested on a warrant charging them with having conspired to defraud the United States on a fictitious and fraudulent account, said to have been made by the defendants for the sum of $36.26. The parties were indicted by the grand jury of the United States court on the 22d instant. It is alleged that on the first day of June, 1883, Danie Crummed was tried in the United States district court for carrying on the business of a retail liquor dealer without having paid the special tax, and that he was found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment for three months in Burke county jail, and that these defendants hired Crummedy to persons in Waynesboro and then sent a bill to United States Marshal Richard D. Locke for the expense of keeping the prisoner 117 days at forty cents per day. The accused on being brought before Commissioner Erwin, were required to give bond in the sum of $500 for their appearance for trial during the present term of the court.

From Mr. Baldie Ryals, tax collector of Dodge county, it is learned that a large per cent of the tax for the present year is yet unpaid.

West Point Enterprise: Monday morning about 11 o'clock Paris Terry, a negro employed in R. W. Wood's bar and billiard saloon, shot Aaron Lowe, a negro drayman, in the left shoulder. They were loading some boxes on the dray when a quarrel ensued, and those who saw it say as Aaron drew a wagon standard on Paris the latter shot him with a self-cocking pistol, belonging in the bar. The wound was only a slight one, but had it entered lower down would have proved fatal. The shooting took place in front of the bar. The marshal arrested the negro, Terry, and a fine of $35 was collected for fighting and carrying concealed weapons. The state then took him with a warrant, but he gave bond and was released. Some of the witnesses say the shooting was justifiable, as the stick was first drawn while others say not, but that the negro, Terry, first struck Lowe.

Mr. Nat Smith, of Catoosa county, who is well known as a great hunter, a few days since killed a fine young catamount.

Catoosa Courier: On Thursday night last Mr. Joseph McClain's store on Nashville street was entered by a burglar, entrance being effected by breaking through a window in the second story of the building. A vigorous effort was made to break into the safe, but although it was considerably battered, and the lock injured, it withstood the attack. Mr. McClain missed quite a number of articles but as they were of small value he thinks the principal object of the burglar was to obtain money.

Rev. Samuel Osborn has been appointed chaplain of the northeast Georgia convicts.

The negroes in this section of Houston county are much exercised over the report current among them that a negro child, born last week near the city of Macon, had five teeth, spoke five words, "Have a famine five years," lived five minutes and died. The Perry Home Journal says: The negroes, especially the very black ones, not only believe the report to be true, but that the prediction will be verified. Nothing is said concerning the beginning of the famine, and from this fact we are inclined to predict a good crop year for 1884.

Hawkinsville has received since the season opened 14,250 bales of cotton.

The grand jury box of Pulaski county now contains the names of 190 citizens. On revising the lists last year the commissioners added sixty-four names, increasing the number from 126 to 190.

Tax collection is progressing very slowly in Pulaski county.

Hawkinsville Dispatch: 'Squire J. M. V. Williams, in the third district of Dooly county, was called on Sunday night last to tie the matrimonial knot for Mr. W. F. Lairsay and Miss Fannie Brinkley, who were determined to unite their lives and fortunes regardless of parental wishes. Mr. Williams discharged the duties of his office without "fear, favor or affection" and the young people were made "one."

Augusta Chronicle: Yesterday morning, between eight and nine o'clock, two negro lads while picking cotton on the plantation of the widow Brooks across the river, being near the home of John Coleman, noticed fire in the interior, and on hastening to the house discovered the only inmate, Hannah, wife of John Coleman, on fire, lying face downward with her head in the fireplace. All her clothes had burned off and she was charred beyond recognition. Her husband was in the same field working and on going to the house to ascertain the cause of the uproar, he discovered her in this position and the two boys drenching her body with water. He said she was subject to fits and had been feeling unwell that morning. He had left her sitting by the fire and supposed that she was seized with one of these fits and pitched over in the fireplace where she was found.

The Columbus Sun learns from parties from near Box Spring, that Mr. William Covington, a brother of Mr. J. W. Covington, who died a few days ago of smallpox, has developed a case of the same disease. It is also said that a sister of Mr. Covington has the smallpox. If these reports are true there are at present three cases of the disease in that neighborhood. Dr. W. H. Philpot, of Talbotton, is attending Mrs. Covington, wife of the late J. W. Covington. There is considerable excitement among the people of that neighborhood, from fear that the disease will become epidemic.

The negro as a teacher and preacher is simply the "blind leading the blind."

From the Eastman, Ga., Times.

From the Oglethorpe, Ga., Echo.

There is nothing that we can conceive of that is more sinful and degrading than flirting. A man that will woo and win a lady's affections and then knowingly and wilfully trifle with them ought to be made to serve the fate of a martyr. God forbid that we may ever become so debarred as to be guilty of such an act, for there is nothing on earth that we prize more highly than we do the affections of a lady.

From the Early County Ga., News.

One of the good deacons of this town who is quite an old man recently bought him a cravat, one of those new fangled kind that run around your neck and fasten at your throat. Putting it on the first time he went to church, but when he got back home he could not get it off. Finally he called one of his boys who is an adept in the use of said cravat to his aid, and he was soon relieved of his uncomfortable ornament. Old men should be careful how they fool with the things intended for a dude of the nineteenth century to manipulate.

From the Lumpkin, Ga., Independent

Two of our la de dah young men took a pair of horses and a hack one night this week and carried some young ladies 'possum hunting. Scroggins says that the two 'possums brought home had been previously caught and fastened to trees so that the town boys could easily get them. Doubtless the young men made the girls believe that they were great hunters, and we hate to dispel the illusion, but are willing to wager a gill of jews harps that neither of them can tell what a gopher is.

His First and Last.

From the Marion, Ga., Argus.

A colored man of our county gave to us a few days ago an account of his first and last steal. He says that on one occasion he had been to market, and on his way back stopped to feed his stock when an old hen came around his horse trough and began to eat the corn. He drove her off once or twice, but still she persisted in troubling him. Finally he concluded to become the future owner of the hen, and caught her and placed her in a bag in his wagon. On his arrival at home he found that she had ruined his fish and some other groceries that he had bought in market of the value of three or four such hens. He turned her loose in the yard with his other chickens. In a short time she went to sitting on a nest of eggs, and in a few days she took the cholera and died, after pretty thoroughly spreading the disease among his other poultry, from which a great many of them died.

The Use of a Boy.

From the Sumter, Ga., Republican.

This story is told by a preacher of a brother minister. Recently a circus was in the city, and the ministerial curiosity was so awakened that an outside view of the canvass would not suffice. The minister had compunctions of conscience against the gratification of what he fancied to be a questionable desire. However, his liberality of belief would allow the children to go, provided they had some good-sized masculine protector. But, unfortunately for him, he had no children. Finally he hit upon a plan. He went to his brother preacher and tried to borrow his five-year-old boy as a companion to the circus. But the other preacher remarked: "I've waited a long time for my boy to get big enough to go to a circus, and now I want to use him myself."

Unhealthy for Dogs.

From the Marion, Ga., Argus.

The deer hunters who went down into Worth and Colquitt counties about three weeks age returned home last Sunday. They report the climate of those counties as being very unhealthy for up-country dogs, having lost two during their stay. The disease with which they were affected had a very strange effect on them, as the dog would have the appearance of being well, but as soon as it got to water and took a few laps it would tumble over with the hardest kinds of convulsions. We understand that there was a little legal malaria that caused the hunters themselves to apprehend some danger as to their own safety, which was strengthened by the sudden disappearance of their legal adviser, who reached home two days in advance of his comrades.

A Curious Instrument.

From the Coffee County, Ga., Gazette.

Mr. DeBose, of this place, has a curious musical instrument, and the first of the kind we have ever seen. It is a home-made machine, and is a box about three feet long, by eighteen inches wide, and one and a half inches in depth. On top are two sounding boards, which are filled with steel wires, while the instrument is held on the lap, or on a chair in front of the performer. The wires or strings are lightly brushed with one hand, in playing, while the other the different notes are produced by pressing on the strings. The tone is low and soft, and we believe an accomplished performer can make excellent music.

A Pink-Eyed Squirrel.

From the Sylvania, Ga., Telephone.

One day last week, while hunting in the Savannah river swamp, Mr. John O. Mathews killed a milk white squirrel which had pink eyes. He has its skin stuffed, and we expect, in a few days, to have it on exhibition in our office. It has been seen several times in the locality where he killed it, and he went out on this occasion to hunt it, and succeeded in killing it.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION.

occurs on December 12th. Only three aldermen to be elected. Eight candidates are in the field and the contest is warming up. The only issue of prominence is the election of candidates favorable to our present system of public schools, which has added greatly to our population and prosperity since their organization.

FIRE.

Special to The Constitution.

SAVANNAH, November 30.—About 8 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the warehouse of Comer & Co., on Canal street, in which was stored 6,000 bales of cotton, covered by $350,000 insurance. The employes of the warehouse went promptly to work and by hard labor with the hose in the yard had the flames extinguished before the firemen arrived. The loss by the fire and water is about $500.

THE INSUFFICIENT JETTIES.

Special to The Constitution.

AUGUSTA, November 30.—Four marriages took place in Augusta on Thanksgiving day.

The first steamboat for several months reached Augusta last evening from Savannah, but left again in a few hours, as the water is falling rapidly. The present jetties in the river at Augusta seem to have done more harm than good. In order to accomplish any permanent benefit the jetties will have to be extended some distance below Augusta. The accumulation of sand about a mile below the jetties is now in position to prevent the passage of steamboats at low water. At least one hundred thousand dollars will be required to put the river in proper condition. Efforts will be made to obtain the necessary appropriation at the coming session of congress.

THE MARBLE QUARRY.

Special to The Constitution.

JASPER, November 30.—J. P. Harrison & Co. have commenced work on their marble quarry. Dewer & Co., of Kansas City, have been operating on a marble quarry below Colonel S. C. Tate's, for two weeks. Their machinery and engine for quarrying has arrived and they will soon be operating on a large scale. We are expecting Bancroft & Co. to commence on another quarry. Daily, of Chattanooga, went up to Marble Cliff the other day to look after a marble interest he has near that place. Silver, of Cartersville, with a company is opening a plumbago mine six or seven miles southwest of Jasper, on Sharp mountain. I hope all of these enterprises may prove profitable to the parties We have yet other quarries of marble, stone, slate and iron, that is inviting capital to develop them We also have any amount of water power that can be utilized by capital. We hope capitalists will continue to come, as we have a beautiful, healthy country with pure air and sparkling water. We look for grand results along the line of the Marietta and North Georgia railroad to the old commonwealth in the near future.

Monroe, Georgia.

A MURDERER ARRESTED.

Special to The Constitution.

MONROE, November 30.—Several weeks ago George Malone and Jim Brown, both negroes, and non-resident negroes at that, were drinking and gambling at the camp of Messrs. Blackstock & Sons, on the Gainesville, Jefferson and Southern railroad, in this couty. At the end of a game they quarreled and cursed each other, when Brown knifed Malone, cutting him severely in several places, particularly across the abdomen. Malone was carried to Conyers to his people, and after lingering there several days, died. A warrant was sworn out in Conyers against Brown, charging him with murder, and sent to our sheriff, who arrested him in this county late yesterday afternoon and lodged him safely in jail last night. Brown is about 5½ feet high, quite black with heavy lips, and weighs about 140 pounds. He refuses to talk. This will make the third case in which each defendant will be tried for his life during the February term next of our superior court—John Wagoner, for rape; Henry Curry, for murder, and Jim Brown, for murder, and it may be that Judge Hutchins will have to pass three death sentences in the new court house. All the defendants and their victims are negroes. Crime was never more rife in Walton county among the negroes and never less among the whites. There are scarcely any white defendants.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

Special to The Constitution.

QUITMAN, November 30.—A distressing and fatal accident happened to Mr. J. C. Horn, on yesterday. He was sitting on a platform in front of Brandon's ginhouse, ten miles southwest of this place, superintending the loading of his wagon with cottonseed. He prepared to jump from the platform to his wagon, about five feet, when he slipped and fell across the wagon body, causing his death in about fifteen minutes.

Miss Willie Smith, a charming young lady from Box Spring, is in the city visiting Miss Cora McMullen. She is an exile from home in consequence of the dreadful malady, smallpox, which has developed in her family since she left home. Her brother-in-law, Mr. Covington, a groom of a month, died from its effects, and indisputable symptoms of the disease have appeared upon his wife.

AN UNSATISFACTORY SCHEDULE.

Under the new schedule THE CONSTITUTION does not reach us until about 2 p. m. on the second day after its publication, about 34 hours old. The numerous complaints attest the popularity of THE CONSTITUTION. The trouble ought to be obviated.

The drought is assuming serious proportions. No rain of any importance in nine weeks. More anon.

Albany, Georgia.

EXECUTION OF AMBROSE WEST.

Special to The Constitution.

ALBANY, November 30.—Ambrose West, colored, was hung to-day at Isabella, Worth county. The rope broke on the first drop. A new one had to be secured and a second trial was had, which resulted in death in about twenty-six minutes, from strangulation. He confessed his guilt, but claimed that he was influenced by another party. The hanging was witnessed by about one thousand people. He was ready to die. The crime was the killing of Jim Monroe, colored, on the plantation of J. E. Billups by knocking him in the head with a maul on the 19th of September last. A number of colored people were gathered on the plantation of Mr. Billups about nine at night, and witnesses testified that the tragedy was enacted while a gleam of moonlight was shed upon the scene by the rifting of clouds, Ambrose West with a maul struck Munroe a fearful blow, felling him. After victim was on the ground West struck him another blow. West was held by the negroes and delivered up to the authorities. On the trial West heard the sentence with stolid indifference, and a slight movement of the fingers of the right hand when the most solemn part of the sentence was pronounced was all that showed that he was animate flesh and blood. When the last words of the sentence, "And may the Lord have mercy on your soul," were pronounced, West sat down with the nonchalance of an Atlanta drummer, and began chewing a fresh quid of tobacco. The negroes in the upper part of the county, where the murder was committed, would not have been satisfied with a lighter sentence.

THE RAILROADS.

THE HEADLIGHTS RUNNING INTO ATLANTA.

The Norfolk and Western—Reducing the Kentucky Central Debt—The Georgia Pacific—St. Louis and Kissimmee City—The Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas—Railroad Notes.

DAILY VINDICATOR: Another citizen, in Vienna this time, is anxious to subscribe $1,000 to the narrow gauge road. He says he is not able to do this unless the road is built, and also says the road will more than increase the value of his property that much. Correct. This is the right view to take of the situation.

THE charter of the Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas railway company has been filed. The road is to begin at or near Kansas Pass, Kansas, in the county of Aransas, or Nueces, running thence in a northerly direction through the county of Aransas or Nueces, and the counties of San Patricio, Bee, Refugio, Goliad, Karns, Wilson, Bexar, Guadalupe, Kendan, Carnal, Hayes, Blanco, Gillespie, Llano, San Saba, Lampasas, Brown, Comanche, Eastland, Throckmorton, Stephens, Young, Archer, Clay and Wichita to Red river. The capital stock is $5,000,000. The following gentlemen are incorporators: General J. B. Gordon, of Atlanta, Ga.; Wm. B. Sterick, and H. C. Comegys, New York, and H. A. Lewis and W. A. Knott, of Wichita Falls, Tex. Work is to be begun immediately.

Reducing the Kentucky Central Debt.

LEXINGTON, November 28.—By order of the circuit court to day $722,000 of old Kentucky Central railroad bonds and $109 025 of coupons were burned, leaving only $1,000 outstanding of the $1,000,000 mortgage of the year 1852. This, added to bonds issued in 1881, payable in 1911, makes the present mortgage debt $6 221,000.

The Norfolk and Western.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., November 28.—The directors of the Norfolk and Western railroad resolved to issue $2,500,000 improvement and extension bonds, for the purpose of building additional warehouses, coal piers, etc., at Norfolk; also, for extending their New River division to open up new coal mines and the building of branch lines into the important mineral district adjacent to its line.

A New Depot.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., November 30.—General Manager Scott, of the Queen and Cresent line, having been in this city for several days with other officers of that road, it developed to-day that the line would build a passenger depot near the Stanton house in this city.

Mrs. Rebecca Reed has brought suit against the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia road, claiming damages in the sum of $10,000 for the drowning of her son in an open well in the yards of that company, three months ago.

Through to Florida.

Special to The Constitution.

BAINBRIDGE, Ga., November 30.—An enthusiastic railroad meeting was held here on Monday night. Great interested was manifested in the building of the road from Macon via this place to Florida. It would tap a fertile country and open up a large turpentine and lumber territory. This line certainly has everr possible advantage over any other line as there would be no stream of any importance to bridge, and the construction of the road would be attended with little difficulty. The citizens along the line will give material aid.

The Georgia Pacific.

Columbus, Miss., Dispatch.

A Dispatch reporter called upon Captain A. M. Hankins, resident engineer of the Georgia Pacific railroad, yesterday and asked him if it was true that the depot of that road would be built where the road crosses Main street, as stated in yesterday's Index. "No site has yet been selected for the depot," replied the gentleman, "and I am very sorry the Index made that statement. As far as the road is concerned the depot question is just as unsettled as it was two years ago. For the present we will use the one we have erected near the Mobile and Ohio depot. When we select a new site, ample notice will be given to everyone, but you may say that up to this time no definite locality has been determined on."

St. Louis and Kissimmee City.

NEW YORK, November 21.—A private dispatch from Jacksonville, Fla., says the steamboat Bertha Lee from St. Louis has arrived at Kissimmee City, via New Orleans, the gulf, Cooloosahatchie river, the Disston canals and the Kissimmee river. The steamer is 150 long and 28 feet wide. This long voyage by a river steamer fully opens water communication in south Florida, and a line of steamers will be placed on the lakes and rivers of that section. Contracts have been made for the planting of sugar cane in the Okeechobee district on a large scale, in view of the opening of transportation. A large number of tourists are expected to visit lower Florida this winter, and a large hotel has been erected at the most southern part reached by President Arthur in his trip last spring. The territory thus opened up contains eleven millions of acres of sugar land. The South Florida railroad is rapidly extending their line from Kissimmee City west to Tampa, and it will be open by January 1.

THE HORSE KICKED HIM.

The horse is a noble animal, and one of the best friends of man. Yet no man wants even his best friend to kick him in the back. Mr. Libby, of Lowell, Mass., received such a kick from a horse in 1865. Ever since he has been a martyr to spinal suffering. PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER has relieved him from a great deal of agony. While he has been using this valuable remedy he has enjoyed his life as he never could have done otherwise. "Accidents will happen." Provide against them by procuring PAIN KILLER.

Why They Call Him "Old Man."

"Yes, that's sadly so," said Jenkins, "my hair is turning gray and falling out before its time. Use something? I would, but most hair restorers are dangerous." "True," answered his friend, "but Parker's Hair Balsam is as harmless as it is effective. I've tried it, and know. Give the balsam a show and the boys will soon stop calling you 'Old Man Jenkins.'" It never fails to restore the original color to gray or faded hair. Richly perfumed, an elegant dressing.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

PUT A BRAND ON HIM.

"Women are a necessary evil," he said, bringing down his fist hard on the counter to emphasize the heartless remark. It was in the village store at West Milton, Saratoga county, and the speaker was the central figure of a group of bucolic philosophers. He was homely, slovenly and sixty.

"There's where I differ from you altogether," said Mr. George T. Graham, of the same place. "Women are mostly what men make 'em. When husbands are brutes wives will fall into submission or make home hot for the men; and they are unnatural in either character. Love them, and especially be good to them when they're sick, and you'll have no trouble. There's my own wife, now. She's suffered a good deal with dyspepsia, nervous prostration and other ailments that took the bloom off her cheeks and the spring out of her steps. Well, she saw an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC, and thought it would be just the thing for her case. Gentlemen, I sent five miles after a bottle. She took it. I sent again after more. So several times. Trouble? Why, if you could see how much good it has done her you would say that women are the greatest of God's blessings, and PARKER'S TONIC is the next."

This preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be called simply PARKER'S TONIC. The change has been rendered necessary by substitutes imposed upon their customers by unprincipled dealers under the name of ginger; and as ginger is really an unimportant flavoring ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC contain the genuine medicine if the fac simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

IMPORTANT

TO PARENTS AND OTHERS---THE ORPHANS' HOME.

We have had a great improvement in the health of our children by the use of Swift's Specific. We had among the children some who had scrofula—notably one case in which it was

UNMISTAKABLY HEREDITARY.

We got some of Swift's Specific and gave it to this case, and in a short time it was cured sound and well. It was as bad a case, I think, as I ever saw, and had been under excellent physicians with no permanent benefit. We have been giving it to all the children as a health tonic. We have four children and one seamstress who, for years, have suffered intensely every spring with erysipelas, and though they had been taking Swift's specific only in small doses as a health tonic, they all, without exception, passed through this spring without a touch of the complaint.

A young lady of the institution, who has been with us for years, has been troubled with a most aggravated rash ever since she was a child. She tried all the known remedies that are prescribed for it with no benefit; but she has been cured by taking Swift's Specific, and has had no return of the trouble.

It is such an excellent tonic, and keeps the blood so pure, that the system is less liable to contract disease. All of the teachers and children who are old enough to know agree with me in believing it is the greatest medicine known. My faith in it is unbounded, and I and my assistants take great pleasure in recommending it to every one. I can at all times be found at the Home and will take pleasure in seeing or corresponding with any who is interested in the remedy.

900 ACRE FARM.

9 MILES FROM CITY ON GEORGIA PACIFIC railroad, two hundred acres of bottom land, three hundred acres cleared, six hundred acres heavily timbered with walnut, hickory, white oak and poplar. The railroad traverses the property through the center for nearly two miles. Nickajack creek runs through the land for about two miles affording as fine water power as could be desired. This farm possesses advantages rarely found and is valuable for many purposes. As a large stock farm it has no equal so near the city. On it is an exhaustless quantity of clay equal for making oil and press brick to anything in the state. As a location for a large factory no better place can be found, the railroad hugs the creek so as to give the advantage of the power and at the same time place your buildings on the right of way. Look to your interest and buy this property.

Austell Property---2 Valuable Water Powers.

BY VIRTUE OF THE POWER VESTED IN US by the will of Alfred Austell, late of Fulton county, Ga., deceased, we will sell to the highest bidder on the first Tuesday in December next, at 12 o'clock noon, before the courthouse door in the city of Atlanta, Fulton county, Ga., the following described lands to-wit: Lots and fractions of lots of land known and distinguished by the numbers 978, 979, 1013, 1014, 1015, 1016, 2017, 1024, 10 5, 1026, 1027, 1028, 1059, 1061, 1062, 1063 and 1065, in the 17th district and 2d section of Cobb county, Ga., containing (561 95-100) five hundred and one 95 100 acres, more or less, to be divided into blocks and sold as follows: Block "A," consisting of lots and fractions of lots 1061, 1062, 1063, 1026, 1025, 1016, 1017 and 1024, containing (188 64-100) one hundred and eighty-eight 64 100 acres, more or less. This Block of land lies on the west bank of the Chattahoochee river, and has on it a positive fall of 13 feet, with an 800 horse power. Block "B," consisting of lots 978 and 979, containing (80) acres, more or less. Block "C" being a fraction of lot 1013, containing (25) twenty-five acres, more or less. Block "E" consisting of lot 1059 and fraction of lot 1065, lying on the Chattahoochee river, and containing (48 22-100) forty eight 22-100 acres, more or less. Block "D" consisting of lots 1014, 1015, 1027 and 1028, containing (160) one hundred and sixty acres of land, more or less. This Block of land lies on each side of Rottenwood creek, a large bold stream, immediately below Aker's celebrated corn and flouring mill, that has a tram road leading out to the Western and Atlantic railroad. The fall on the creek is a positive one of (20) twenty feet, and has a 80 horse power. As the banks are high with rock on each side a dam can be built across the stream with the material on the spot. These lands are situated on the Chattahoochee river and Rottenwood creek nine miles northwest of Atlanta, near the line of the Western and Atlantic railroad, which runs daily accommodation trains, with two valuable water powers on it capable of running a the machinery that can be placed on the ground. These are the most desirable water powers in the state of Georgia. First, the inexhaustible supply of water, the positive fall giving the power as shown on the plat; next, its proximity to Atlanta, its accessibility by accommodation trains running near it on the Western and Atlantic railroad, and its healthy locality. The health and productiveness of all the surrounding country makes it a very desirable locality for operatives. The spring and well water is cold and freestone. These combined advantages certainly address themselves to the sound judgment of any business man who wants water power for machinery. The lands are heavily timbered with about fifty acres of cleared land on the entire tract. The water power on both the Chattahoochee river and Rottenwood creek are effective horse power, and not theoretical, as both streams were gauged at a very low stage of water. Plats to be seen at the office of G. W. Adair, exhibited on day of sale.

Also, an undivided (¼) one-fourth interest in about (60) sixty acres of land more or less in the town of Mt. Airy, Ga., being a part of land lot No. (94) one hundred and seventy-four, south half, 10th civil district of Habersham county, Ga., being an undivided (¼) one-fourth interest in the unsold lots in blocks A, B, C, D, E, I, J, K, N, O, P and W, and an undivided (¼) one-fourth interest in the entire blocks L, M, R, S, T, U, V, X and Y, as per the map of said town. Plats to be seen at the office of G. W. Adair, exhibited on day of sale.

Also, nine (9) shares of the capital stock of the Mt. Airy hotel company.

A NEW JACOB.

By telegraph to The Constitution.

SELMA, N. C., November 30.—James Buck owns a small farm near Bodkin, upon which he and his only daughter live. Buck saw the chance of making a profitable crop of tobacco if he could only get some one to assist him and his daughter in the field. Richard Turney, a young man, became enamored of Buck's daughter. The father agreed if the young man would assist him for one year, that he would give him a doubl-barrelled shotgun and his daughter. The term of service expired. Buck gave him the shotgun and called the daughter in to become Turney's wife. She refused, saying that she had already given her heart to another. Turney threatens to sue the old man for $5,000 for breach of contract, and get an injunction restraining the [illegible] and signal triumph of the democratic at the polls. After a general review of the campaign, the address takes up and refutes all the slanderous charges of Senator Mahone. It is shown clearly that the democratic victory was due solely to the return of democrats to their party alliances. The uprising of the people against Mahone's methods is well told.

THE SPEAKERSHIP ELECTION.

Our Washington correspondent telegraphs us that only three of the Georgia members will vote for Mr. Randall, and that this fact has more or less discouraged the friends of that gentleman.

It Mr. Randall is defeated we shall regret it. If the Georgia members contribute in special degree to that event we shall regret it still more. We are firm in the conviction that Mr. Randall's defeat will decrease very materially the chances of a national democratic victory in 1884. We believe that his defeat will mean the setting aside of the influences that can command a democratic success, and the substitution of influences under which that success is more than doubtful. To epitomize: It will mean, in our opinion, the displacing of the Randall-Tilden-Hoadly element, and the substitution of the element that seems to be headed by Watterson and McDonald. This is the substitution of unsafe and incapable leaders for those that are safe and masteriy. Under the first we should be confident of victory. Under the latter rather the reverse. The republican party can maintain itself in power only by appealing to the business interests of the country against violent agitation and violent changes in the tariff. It was the "business scare" that defeated Hancock in 1880, when victory was almost in his grasp. It is to the same point of attack they will look in 1884. By the election of Randall the democrats would have made this point impregnable. They will weaken it, if they elect over Mr. Randall the only man in our history whose name is attached to a business panic.

THE CONSTITUTION has not lessened its opposition to the present tariff one iota. It still holds it to be unjust, uneven and oppressive. But, for many reasons, we know that a democratic victory in 1884 is much more important than such slight changes as can be made in the tariff with the republicans holding the white house and senate. Whatever endangers a national victory inevitably postpones such a tariff revision as will be just and satisfactory. This, we believe, the defeat of Mr. Randall would do. But whatever may be the result of to-night's caucus, THE CONSTITUTION will be found standing on the Ohio platform, as far as the tariff is concerned, and supporting the nominee of the democratic party no matter who is concerned.

THE ATLANTA ZULU.

From the Macon Telegraph.

In an Atlanta letter to the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist a few days since it was stated that the negroes in Atlanta outnumbered the whites on the registration list; in plain English that the African held the political power in the capital city of the state. * * * If the capital city is to be turned over to the Zulus, in order that cliques and rings may prosper and grow fat, the being crowded. The liveliest interest was manifested in the proceedings. The case of the government against John A. Mitchell, colored democrat of Charleston, who took an active part in the last political canvass, was taken up. The indictment charges him with obstructing and intimidating voters. The defense made an argument urging the court to declare the new rule of procedure harmonizing with the recent legislative enactment against the prosecuting officer standing aside jurors. Emory Speer argued against the motion. Judge Bond overruled the motion, Judge Bryan dissenting. The defense then made an effort to invalidate the jury panel on the ground that it was illegally drawn. This, too, was overruled by Judge Bond. The defense sought to quash the indictment but failed. These preliminary skirmishes occupied the court till adjournment. To-morrow the jury will be empaneled and the case will take several days. It is regarded as an important test case. Mr. Speer is disgusted with his reception by the bar, which is anything but cordial. He is determined, he says, to proceed with the cases regardless of public censure.

THE LEGISLATURE.

A joint resolution has been introduced in the legislature and favorably reported on appropriating ten thousand dollars for the defense of the accused in these cases. Nothing but unimportant routine business occupied the legislature to-day.

From the Starke, Fla., Telegraph.

During a recent gale the entire Wallack troupe were lost at sea between Key West and Nassau. This troupe gave several entertainments in this city last season. Poor Ryder; he often expressed, in his favorite song, a desire to be a "whale with a great long tail at the bottom of the deep, blue sea." The Wallack troupe was a favorite theatrical combination with our citizens, having exhibited here several times three or four years ago—each exhibition drawing a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Watty Wallack and his wife Fannie were also prominent actors in the troupe, and we regret to learn of their having found a premature and watery grave.

A CHILD BARELY SAVED.

From the Shreveport, La., Times.

An alarm of fire was sounded last night between 12 and 1 o'clock. The fire was found to be located in the Caldwell buildings, on Texas street, between Edward and Marshall streets. It originated in the office of Mr. John Caldwell, in that part of the building adjoining Mitchell's stable and next to Mr. J. H. Stoner's shops and residence. When the alarm was given Mr. Jim Scully and Mr. Faherty went into the Morlet boarding house, up stairs and pushing or breaking open the doors of the establishment, found a child of 3 or 4 years of age asleep in the back room. Mr. Scully took the child and carried it down through the smoke and flames which had already broken into the stairway, and brought it safely out of danger. A few minutes later and the child would doubtless have been lost.

THE PESTHOUSE DESTROYED.

From the Knoxville, Tenn., Chronicle.

Yesterday morning about one o'clock J. S. Lamb who lives on the old fair grounds and has charge of the pest houses used by the city some months ago, discovered the building used for the whites on fire. He rushed out and tried to quench the flames, but his efforts were futile. The parties who had so successfully fired the building, shot several times at Lamb from a distance, some of the shots just missing their mark. During this time the other building had been fired from the outside with a sack of shavings upon which coal oil had been poured, but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done the building. Certain parties are suspected, but no definite proof has been ascertained as to who the guilty ones are. The tracks of a buggy were visible near the burnt building.

A BLOOD CURDLING SIGHT.

From the Oxana, Ala., Tribune.

We witnessed Monday afternoon a blood-curdling escape from a horrible death. As the east bound passenger train on the Georgia Pacific was running at full speed, a few miles this side of Lincoln, a man was discovered lying on the track. As quickly as possible the alert engineer put on brakes, reversed his engine and whistled the alarm. But before the man could move or the train be stopped, the engine and baggage car passed over him. Fortunately his head was lying between the cross ties and his body outside, and by less than two inches his life was saved. The man was drunk and when being hauled out, rubbed his eyes and said: "What in the dickens is the matter with you all anyhow?" He was rolled down the bank and the train [illegible] on, leaving him looking after it in an idiotic fea[illegible] from robbers. Poor [illegible]s who cannot [illegible]rd diamonds may console themselves by reflecting how uneasy beats a heart under a sparkling burden of priceless gems.

IN the New York Sun that arrives to-day we expect to see an announcement to the effect that under no circumstances will Mr. Tilden be a candidate for the presidency. But we do not expect to see Mr. Tilden's signature affixed to the announcement.

"BURY the wires," exclaims the Chicago News. But hold! Bury the republican wire-workers first, and then the country will feel more like enjoying the interment of the wires.

IN these days mourning has almost ceased to be suggestive of woe, having become ornamental and conspicuous to such a degree that many belles wear it simply to heighten their charms and not as an emblem of bereavement. For this reason some conscientious people object to wearing mourning. A handsome widow who has lost two husbands, wore at the opera lately, a black costume with a low corsage relieved by a graniture of white lace; and with diamond jewelry. Another widow has been observed on her way to church attired in a striking costume of deep mourning that was very conspicuous. Her veil was thrown back over her bonnet, brought around in front and caught on the shoulders with ornamental fruits. On Patti night in New York, a stately belle affected a costume entirely of white and black. A white dress with a low corsage and sleeveless. Black feather pompons adorned the corsage near the left shoulder and long black gloves encased the hands in which an elegant white fan was held.

THE New York Times freely admits that the Danville trouble had no political significance. To this may be added the fact that Mahone is also without political significance, except as the leader of the republican party in the senate.

THERE is no longer any doubt that John Hay, Clarence King and the editor of the Chicago Inter-Ocean wrote the new novel "The Bread Winners."

A LADY traveling alone into Mexico has found that to maintain her respectability she must have a female attendant who is emphatically a vade mecum. The fair sojourner describes her Mexican guide, who is called a creado, as possessing some annoying traits. She appropriates small articles belonging to the lady, experiments with toilet mysteries and even disposes of the apparel sacred to the person of her employer. But the creado is described as ornamental at least as a decorated Japanese jar. Her starry eyes shine out from a face the color of an old shoe; upon her tiny bare feet she wears sandals of her own devising, and indoors or out she wears a long blue cotton shawl which is twined about her head and slender figure with a grace no white woman could attain. She makes herself useful by killing tarantulas and centipedes and takes comfort by sitting cross-legged on the floor and vigorously scratching with both hands among her raven tresses.

WE have made several sincere appeals for information, but nobody has told us the name of the man who can carry John Kelly. Mr. Tilden knows, but Mr. Tilden is not in a confidential frame of mind.

AN exchange desires to know if the American is dying out. If he isn't dying out he is gradually giving way to the Chicago drummer.

NO ONE can deny after ten minutes of laborious reflection that this is the greatest country on the globe, so far as the production of cranks is concerned. We have cranks of every style and variety; but it is a long jump from the faded Hayes—the republican crank—to the blooming E. R. Buckland, who is now exhibiting himself in St. Louis. Buckland is fresh from a Chicago flirtation, and he is so wildly in love that his sighs sound like the coal-burning locomotives on the West Point road. While n hicago Buckland informed Mrs. John A. Logan at he was dying to marry somebody, and that lady ked him why he didn't marry one of General erman's daughters. Buckland took the hint, ote a letter to the general and followed it to St. uis. Arriving there he called upon General cumseh and boldly demanded the hand of his ughter. Since that eventful day he has been ndering around the city airing his grievance, henever he can find a hearer.

THE Vanderbilts are about to give another ball to e vulgarians of New York society. The opponents of Mr. Hewitt would be glad to see him attend this ball. Mr. Tilden will stay at home.

WE are glad to know that Dr. Hamilton Griffin, f Kentucky, has refused to allow the prince of Wales to kiss his hand.

AT its annual meeting in January the Cattle-growers association of Colorado will take action in the matter of ridding the state of cattle thieves. It appears that cattle stealing is carried on by many of the herders. In order to check their operations in this line it is proposed to require herders to use the brands of their employers, and herd their cattle with those of their employers. At the "round up" the cattle raiser will give the herder a certificate that he owns a certain number. By this method as soon as a herder registers a brand the stock-raisers are notified, and the would be thief is bounced. Herders are also photographed, so that when one has been detected stealing parties interested can be placed on their guard.

NOW that the Maine statesman has pronounced against the Pennsylvania proposition to divide the surplus in the federal treasury among the states, what does the Hon. Wharton Barker propose to do about it?

MR. BLAINE has written a letter and signed his name to it. This may be regarded as the opening of the campaign.

A WRITER in the London Telegraph describes scenes of squalor and poverty among the London poor which are more repulsive than anything to be found in Dickens's graphic chronicles of the slums. The so-called private lodging houses in the east end of the city are worse than the tenement houses in the lowest quarters of New York. The furniture of these places resembles a collection of rubbish from a junk shop, and the filth is simply indescribable. Into these regions respectable people seldom go, except now and then a stray missionary who soon retires, sickened and disheartened at the sight of suffering which is beyond his power to alleviate. The coming writer, who is to portray the mysteries and miseries of the modern Babylon will find sufficient materials in Spitalsfields.

CINCINNATI, whose musical education was begun by listening to pigs squealing under the front gate, looks upon the high prices charged by opera companies as very obnoxious.

PROFESSIONAL sword swallowers perform, apparently, startling feats, but it is a well-known fact that the back parts of the mouth are capable of becoming, through habit, accustomed to abnormal contacts. By constant practice the sword swallower accustoms his pharynx to the contact of large objects, such as swords, canes and even billiard cues. This accomplishment, however, is acquired only by gradual and painful efforts.

EDMOND ABOUT, in his address at the unveiling of Dore's statue of Alexander Dumas, the elder, described him as "a great madman who, in his deafening gayety, possessed more real wit and wisdom than all of us put together;" "an irregularity who refuted rules; a man of pleasure, who could set an example to all men of labor; a lover of amorous, political and military adventures, who outshines alone more than three monasteries of Benedictines."

SEVERAL of our esteemed state contemporaries are in a state of suspense over Thanksgiving. And, indeed, it is better to suspend one issue than to be overtaken with the nightmare.

POLITICAL NOTES.

AN anti-Mormon movement has been started in London.

IT was a wise provision to have thanksgiving come before congress meets.

THE Buffalo Express, rep., urges the national republican committee to call the next convention at Niagara falls.

OF the 113 democratic papers in Indiana, of which twenty-two have declared for McDonald and five for Hendricks, the others are non-committal.

THERE are already five candidates in the field for the succession to United States Senator Groome, of Maryland, and the returns are only just beginning to come in.

THE late Mr. Keifer must feel peculiar when he observes how the country congratulates itself that, whatever happens, he is in no danger of being re-elected speaker.

CONGRESSMAN WASHBURN, of Minnesota, reaches so far for time's forelock as to declare now that he shall not seek a re-election. It is not conceivable, however, that a member of that family will voluntarily betake himself to private life.

AN enumeration of the voters of Indiana, just completed, shows an increase in six years of 41,674 whites and 987 colored, an annual increase of 7,110. The total number of voters is 484,643 whites and 10,007 colored, making the grand total 494,650.

THE ignorance which the London Times displayed in allowing the following cable dispatch from New York to appear in its columns is decidedly amusing, the Mr. Mason alluded to being Mr. Mahone: "In Massachusettes a heavy vote was polled. Mr. George D. Robinson, republican, has probably 15,000 majority over General Butler, the present governor of Pennsylvania. The democrats also elect the majority of the legislature for Virginia, thus securing the return of one of their party as United States senator in the place of Mr. Mason."

HON. THOS A. ROBERTSON, Proctor Knott's successor in congress, is said to be a better story-teller than the Duluth statesman. He has an easier command of language, and is much more graceful in his manner of delivery. He is above medium height, with very square shoulders. His face is round, full and high colored. The color of his face is intensified by a fiery red mustache and goatee. Reddish curly hair comes down well upon his broad forehead. There is an air of reckless good fellowship about Robertson which is certain to make him a popular member.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

HERR EDWARD DASCAR, the German statesman, is a Hebrew by birth.

PAULINE LUCCA is to receive $5,000 for three concerts at Moscow. This is preparatory to coming to America and demanding $5,000 per concert.

MRS. LANGTRY, it is said owns $75,000 worth of real estate in New York, and is considered, on the whole, a very shrewd business woman by those who know her well.

DANIEL WEBSTER is revered the most in his native state of any of the sons of Massachusetts. Robert Rantoul and John A. Andrew come next while John Quincy Adams is regarded nowadays as an accomplished grumbler.

LOTTA will soon make her first appearance in London. She is not so young or so lovely as Mary Anderson, but she can kick twice as high, and Albert Edward is cautioned to hold his hat on tight when he goes fooling around in her locality.

ON her return to Windsor from the north the queen's health was said to be excellent and her spirits were restored. She still uses a stick, however, when she walks, but she is said nevertheless to be not in the least lame. She will spend Christmas at Osborne.

MISS MAUD ELY-GODDARD, of the rich Goddards who live at Ely, Vt., is the latest American miss to be caught by a kingling. Her husband is Prince Poniatowski, aged forty or thereabouts, the wife being "tall, brown-eyed and very handsome' at twenty-six.

NORTH GEORGIA CONFERENCE.

The Proceedings of the Third Day's Session—The Progress of the Work.

THE THIRD DAY.

Special to The Constution.

DALTON, November 30.—The North Georgia conference of the third day met at 9 a. m., with Bishop Pierce in the chair. Religious services were conducted by Dr. J. E. Evans. Minutes of yesterday's session were read and approved. On motion of J. Boring, D. D., the conference reconsidered its action of yesterday in not admitting on trial G. T. King, an applicant for admission on trial from the Dahlonega district, and was admitted. The second question was called: "Who remain on trial?" when the following cases were acted upon: L. W. Rivers, J. H. Little, E. W. Ballinger, J. T. Lin, F. P. Langford, B. F. Payne, F. O. Favor, W. W. Brasswell, F. S. Hudson and R. M. Lattimer. The last one was discontinued at his own request.

The fourth question, "Who are admitted into full connection," was called and the class was called before the bishop, the usual questions propounded to them, when their cases were acted upon, C. V. Weathers, C. A. Jamison, W. T. Hamby, J. B. Allen, F. D. Cantrell, E. I. Smith, T. O. Rorie.

The fifth question was called, "Who are readmitted," when M. A. Phillips and B. E. Ledbetter were readmitted. The following were elected deacons: C. V. Weathers, C. A. Jamison, W. T. Hamby, F. D. Cantrell, T. O. Rorie.

The sixth question was called, "Who are received by transfer," when Jere Reese was announced transferred from the Northwest Texas conference; J. M. Tumlin, an elder in the Protestant Methodist church, was received by vote of the conference as a transfer to this body.

On motion T. J. McLain, elder in the Congregational Methodist church, was recognized as a local preacher in elder's orders.

W. P. Lovejoy, presiding elder of the Elberton district, announced to the conference that the credentials of B. W. Williams, a deposed elder, could not be returned to the conference, the same having been consumed in a burned building; and the secretary was instructed to note that fact.

The bishop resigned his seat while the legal conference received the report of its treasurer, Rev. H. J. Adams, Dr. Potter being president.

Bishop Pierce resumed his chair, and the joint board of finance submitted a report of claimants on the conference fund, after amendment, increasing the allowance of Mrs. C. W. Key was made $200 instead of $150. The report was then adopted.

The report of the Dalton female college was presented by President R. W. Smith, which showed a good state of things and fine prospects.

Rev. J. W. Hinton, D. D., was introduced to the conference and represented the Quarterly Review of the Southern Methodist church. It is a periodical of very solid worth and has some of the ablest writers among its contributors. It is enlarging its circulation and is a very valuable periodical, and should be read by all Methodists.

Preaching in the Methodist church at 3 p. m. by Rev. A. C. Thomas. Text, Luke xii: 49, 50.

The interest of the people of Dalton is increasing in the conference and attend all the services. Rev. J. W. Lee has won the hearts of the people, and they are very anxious to have him another year.

Among the new arrivals is Colonel W. S. Thompson, of Sixth church, Atlanta, who is treasurer of the conference board of church extension. He has received a good sum for building churches, considering this is the first collection taken.

Among the visitors present are W. A. Haygood, A. M. Reinhardt, W. E. McCalla, from Atlanta; Dr. H. H. Cary, Georgia fish commissioner. W. S. Witham, of New York, is looking finely, and is a favorite among the preachers.

The collections for home missions this year will be equal to the assessment, about $6,200, and for foreign missions about $12,250,00 Miss Mattie Jones, our missionary to the city of Mexico, who is to sail the first of January, is present, visiting the Woman's Missionary society. Judge Meriwether reports a collection of nearly $9,000 for superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans of deceased preachers.

Last night the meeting of the centenary committee had a crowded house, many going away. Dr. J. W. Heidt presided. Scriptures were read, and prayer by Rev. Dr J. S. Hopkins. Dr. W. F. Harrison, secretary of the Central centenary committee of our church, addressed the conference. He said that next year in Baltimore at Christmas would be celebrated the centenary of independent Methodist organization. In 1784 it became an independent body. Next year the Southern Methodist church wish to stir up the people on education, and secure an endowment to all our colleges. We are going to try to raise $500,000 as a loan fund for church extension, helping weak churches. The church must be roused on Sunday schools and missions. Many of our preachers now receive less than day laborers, and the people must be stirred to take care of God's servants better. In America during the past century Methodism has increased from a handful to above 4,000 000 members. Great problems lie before Methodism to be solved in the next century. No time for sluggards.

Mr. W. H. Potter spoke of the blessings to Christendom during the past century. His words stirred the whole audience to its depths.

The secretary, Dr. John W. Heidt, with his inimetable voice is doing magnificent work, assisted by Rev. J. H. Baxter. Rev. T. A. Seals is recording secretary.

The statistics are being gathered by the secretaries, Rev's. J. W. Roberts, J. D. Hammond and Miles H. Dillard.

Preaching at the Methodist church at 7 p. m., by Dr. J. S. Hopkins, at the Presbyterian church by Rev. Sam P. Jones.

THE MACON NOTEBOOK.

A Receiver Appointed—A Double Count—Marriage in Baldwin—The County Commissioners.

Special to The Constitution.

MACON, November 30.—It was reported in the city yesterday that G. L. Mason, a country merchant engaged in business nine miles from Tennelle, Central railroad, had failed and had transferred his stock and possessions to his father-in-law, Mr. B. L. Smith. The information received was that he had made a lumping trade of his stock, and has made an average of his cotton at 400 pounds to the bale. The transaction did not look legitimate and was commented on in the city considerably yesterday. The Macon creditors of the house applied for bill of receivership before Judge Carswell, and he granted the application and appointed Mr. D. L. McRea as temporary receiver, who assumed his position to-day. The case comes up for final hearing December 10.

Mr. J. D. Pannell, an Atlanta man, is painting the office of the mayor in the city hall.

A DOUBLE COURT.

A double-barrelled court will be held here next week. Judge Estes will take charge of the criminal business while Judge Simmons will try civil cases. Mr. Harry Griswold, official reporter of the Oconee circuit, will assist in the stenographical work.

Married, at the residence of Dr. Harper in Meriwether, Baldwin county, by the Rev. S. S. Sweet, Mr. Wm. Dunbar and Miss Emma Wright. The newly married couple arrived in the city last evening and were tendered a reception at the residence of Mr. Geo. Wright, on Magnolia street.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners met to-day for the purpose of considering their answer in the matter of the attachment served on them a few days since in reference to the building of the jail. Messrs. Lanier and Anderson were the attorneys employed by the board to advise with in the matter. The case is assigned for to-morrow.

A liquor license was granted Messrs. Adams & Asbell, of East Macon district.

The new steamer Laurence, built for the purpose of carrying freight for the Central railroad along the line from Williams' Bluff and Dublin to the Oconee bridge in Wilkinson county, was inspected to-day at the latter place and declared to have been the best on the river. It will be commanded by Captain R. C. Henry.

Ellison, the man who created so much excitement yesterday in reference to shooting his sister, has not been seen or heard of to-day and the presumption is that he became aware of the warrant for him and skipped the city.

STOLEN GOODS RECOVERED.

About a year ago there was stolen from the residence of Mrs. J. N. Burch a gold watch, a lot of jewelry, college badges, rings, etc., and since no clue has been discovered. During the week a negro woman by the name of Faunie Boatman has been making presents and displaying articles of jewelry, besides offering for sale and pawning it. This afternoon a search warrant was procured by Mr. M. B. Burch, and to-morrow her effects will be searched. The jewelry seen answers to the description of that stolen.

JEMISON'S BROTHER.

Deputy Marshal T. D. Weid brought to the city this afternoon Oliver Jemison, charged with counterfeiting. He was arrested in Pike county on an indictment. Jemison is a brother of the counterfeiter recently convicted and sent to Albany, New York.

This morning as the Southwestern train due in the city at 7:15 was coming at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour—being about an hour behind time—when about one and a half miles beyond Oglethorpe the rear and side driving wheels suddenly snapped at the axle and threw the engine half off the track, giving the train a general shaking up. George Ralston, a negro woodpasser, jumped and had his legs badly broken, besides sustaining other injuries. Mr. Sam C. Hoge went down with a force of machinists and soon got the wreck off the track. The engine was taken to Oglethorpe and another substituted.

A BOX FROM COCHIN CHINA.

"Check a box from Cochin China," sang out Tap Holt, at the express office this morning. It was promptly checked by clever Bob Ware, when he turned and said to THE CONSTITUTION representative, "It came a long ways, didn't it?" When asked if that was a seldom occurrence he said, oh, no! we frequently receive and deliver packages to and from all parts of the globe. There goes a package for Bremen now. There is not an office of this reliable company in the south that is worked on a more thorough system than the Macon office. Mr. Thomas H. Henderson, the manager, has every department regulated in a systematic manner, and the young men under his charge are as clever as can be found together, among whom are Messrs. Henry Wood, J. N. Burch, J. A. Cleary, E. J. Nelson, J. W. Johnson and John C. Moore.

The Willingham warehouse company received from Kentucky to-day the finest piece of mutton ever seen here. It was placed on exhibition and has attracted much attention.

THE SUPERIOR COURT.

An Important Day in the Court—Several Matters Heard by Judge Hammond.

Fulton superior court was in session again yesterday. Judge Hammond presided and the criminal cases were disposed of.

Chas. Johnson, the negro who was a witness in the DeFoor murder case and who swore that Savanger and Brown had given him a bottle of poison with which to kill Joe Johnson, was arraigned upon the charge of burglary. The state alleged that Johnson did on the first day of November, 1883, enter Owen C. Carroll's residence and steal therefrom a watch and chain. The evidence did not warrant a conviction and a verdict of not guilty was returned.

John Haygood pleaded not guilty to the same charge. The evidence showed that Haygood did enter C. E. Hennis's dwelling and steal therefrom a lot of silver coin. The jury believed Haygood guilty of larceny and the court imposed a sentence of six months or fifty dollars.

The grand jury was in session during the day and turned a true bill against O. P. Cornet, the mute wife slayer. Solicitor Hill endeavored to have the trial set for Monday next, but Mr. Foster, of Madison, Cornet's attorney, stated that he would not be able to be present on that day and Monday one week was designated as the day for the trial.

The Scarrett case was not tried. Ten o'clock was the hour designated for the opening of the trial, but Mr. Scarrett was not then present and another case was called. Shortly after one o'clock Mr. Scarrett came into court and an agreement was entered into fixing Monday for the trial. Solicitor Hill says that he has never received the letter, a copy of which was printed in THE CONSTITUTION yesterday, from Mr. Scarrett.

In chambers Judge Hammond yesterday afternoon resumed the hearing of the celebrated pavement cases. The cases have been elaborately and exhaustively argued by the attorneys for both sides. Captain W. T. Newman consumed the greater part of Thursday's session, and Colonel Mynatt occupied the attention of the court the greater part of yesterday's session.

This case is now in the hands of Judge Hammond, who will render his decision this morning. Yesterday a great deal of interest was manifested in the case. Everybody expressed great anxiety to know the result when it was announced that the argument had been completed. The speeches all gave a history of the local assessment law which has been discussed in nearly every state in the union. Messrs. Mynatt & Howell and Broyles & Johnson appeared for the petitioners. City Attorney Angier and Captain Newman represented the city.

Cad, the Tom Boy.

Miss Carrie Swain, the popular soubrette, appeared at DeGive's opera house last night, producing her play "Cad, the Tom Boy," by Lew Grover, of "Boarding House" fame, to a large audience. Her play is a queer mixture of improbabilities the plot, dialogues and situations do not amount to much, and the two last acts are weak when compared with the preceding ones, but taking it all in all, it serves as a string to hang the sparkling gems upon which compose her repertoire. She is good-looking, dances well, is graceful, can whirl a summersault, swing from a telegraph pole, and do well any thing a tom boy can. She has a full, rather sweet and rich voice with a high range, and has a skillful and artistic use of it. The supporting company is a good one, embracing a number of well trained actors and actresses, who have been with Miss Swain for several seasons and know perfectly what is expected of them. In her lullaby scene; the dancing scene; in the affecting parts of the play calling forth tender emotions, she was satisfactory, as well as in other parts. In short, the lively, rollicking comedy appeared to entertain the audience in a high degree, which was evidenced by frequent applause. Miss Carrie Swain will always receive a cordial welcome in Atlanta.

The Black Dwarf.

Undoubtedly the spectacular event of the season will occur next week at the opera house, when the Black Dwarf will be presented in all its magnificent splendor. The play is similar in plot to the Black Crook, except that all the objectionable features that were introduced in that spectacle have been eliminated from the Black Dwarf, making it an interesting, wholesome play, in which the skill of the painter and machinist have been taxed to their utmost in giving effect to the story as represented on the stage. The specialty acts introduced throughout the play are numerous and pleasing. Among the most brilliant will be that of M'lle. Leonilda Ortori, charming premiere danseuse, ably supported by Miss Ida Francis and a corps de ballet of twenty young ladies, as coryphees, Amazons, etc., will appear in rich and dazzling costumes.

The Last Day of Carver.

The last day of Dr. W. F. Carver's Great Wild Western Rocky Mountain and Prairie exhibition will take place to-day at 2:30 p. m. Those who have visited the great performance will visit it for the last time to-day, those who have not, will avail themselves of the last opportunity. Many new and interesting features in the reperteir not bofore introduced in this city will be presented. Dr. Carver has kindly consented to admit all school children at the greatly reduced price of 15 cents each, which will enable all to witness the farewell performance of this the greatest, the grandest, the most realistic, thrilling, moral and instructive exhibition ever seen on earth. Standing alone without a rival and without a competitor. The monarch of all open air amusement enterprises on the continent. The greatest programme reserved for the farewell performance, making the last day the greatest day of all. Come early and avoid the rush.

Arthur and Lincoln.

From the New York World.

A Washington correspondent says that a variety of combinations are being made up by the friends of the Arthur movement. Thus, "the ticket is Arthur and Miller for California, Arthur and Lincoln for Illinois, Arthur and Harrison for Indiana, Arthur and Allison for Iowa, Arthur and Ingalls for Kansas, Arthur and Conger for Michigan, Arthur and Washburne for Minnesota, thur and Foster for Ohio and Arthur and Sawyer for Wisconsin." Well. "Arthur and Lincoln" sounds well, and is by no means an improbable team.

The Thomas Concert.

It will probably be another season before the people of Atlanta and middle Georgia have another opportunity of hearing such magnificent music as that to be heard this afternoon and evening by the Thomas orchestra, and it behooves everybody to attend. The Atlanta Musical Union has endeavored to show the people why they should cultivate a taste for higher music, and their enterprise in bringing this greatest of America's orchestras here ought not to go unappreciated.

Our Washington Dispatches.

From the Augusta Evening News.

Henry Richardson, for three winters the Washington correspondent of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, left for the capital yesterday evening. Mr. Richardson is one of the most reliable and newsy letter writers in the country, and his letters and dispatches to THE CONSTITUTION are always read with great interest by the thousands of readers of that paper.

Superior Court Civil Docket.

Owing to the postponement of the trial of Cornet, for murder, until Monday, the 10th, Judge Hammond announces that the civil docket will be in order at 8:30 a. m. next Monday, and desires parties, witnesses and attorneys to take due notice of the fact.

A Ten Million Dollar Mortgage.

LANCASTER, Pa., November 30.—A mortage for ten million dollars in favor of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company by the Bankers' and Merchants' telegraph company was received at the recorder's office in this city to-day. This is the first county in the state in which a mortgate has been recorded.

Thomas's Orchestra.

The sale of seats yesterday to the Thomas orchestra entertainment this afternoon and evening were heavy, though there are still a number of choice seats unsold. Those who have not bought tickets should not fail to do so at once. The musical feast will be such as has never been heard in Atlanta.

NEW YORK TOPICS.

CLIPPING A BLOOMING SCHOOL GIRL'S TRESSES.

The Arrival of Some English Lightweight—The Glut of Thanksgiving Turkeys—In Favor of a Bi-Metallic Standard—The Profits of Rag-Picking—The Beautiful Sunsets.

NEW YORK, November 30.—A woman's glory is her hair. To be shorn of that is worse than it is for a politician to be defeated when he runs for office. Yet the malignity of a rejected lover can grow bitter enough to inflict even that indignity upon the lady who does not choose to submit her future to his keeping. At Newport a blooming fifteen-year old schoolgirl has suffered in this manner at the hands of one whose name she has not yet disclosed. On Friday last, while returning from school, Miss Burrill was suddenly confronted by a man who seized her quickly, drew her face close against his coat, and with a knife cut off a braid of her hair, which he flung on the ground contemptuously, saying, "There, take that," and then turned quickly and hurried away. One of the best known ladies of the city happened to be passing along the street a little after the outrage was committed and she remembered having seen a thick-set, smooth-faced man, with a slouch hat pulled well over his eyes, hurrying along towards Mill street. The evident malice of the attack created a good deal of comment, but a second and more mysterious one committed has aroused the town. Mr. Burrill had been warned that a second attack was contemplated. Miss Burrill's room is in a remote part of the house and her parents have been in the habit of locking her door at night. He had waited up longer than usual for some of his boarders to come in, and after locking the front door went to his daughter's room and locked it and then retired. Early this morning a neighbor noticed that the window of Miss Burrill's room was halfway up and thought it strange. About seven o'clock the Burrill family were startled by a scream from the girl's room. They found the girl terrified by the discovery that some one had entered her room while she slept, severed the one remaining braid and left it on the bed beside her. He had done his work and made his escape so quietly that she had known nothing of it until she awoke at the usual hour. Mr. Burrill has offered a reward of $50 for the miscreant's detection, and is disposed to think the police ought to have done something of the same kind to encourage his arrest after the first outrage was committed.

BURNING OF THE WINDSOR THEATER.

A fire broke out in the Windsor theater about midnight and the building was totally destroyed. Manager Stevens, lessee of the theater, said his individual loss in effects, scenery and manuscripts will be between $15,000 and $20,000, and his loss of profits by the interruption at this season may reach $50,000 and exceed it. Financially, he said, he was all right, and that the fire wouldn't cripple him. Probably he would obtain this ground and rebuild as quickly as possible, and in the meantime get the Academy of Music or some other temporary station for the season. The buildings from No. 37 to No. 51 Bowery, both inclusive, were gutted. They abutted on the theater in the rear, and could not be saved. The losses, so far as they could be ascertained this morning, were as follows: Theater building, William H. Martin, owner, $200,000; insured to amount two-thirds, it was said, in a number of companies; John Stevens, lessee, lost $17,000, partly insured. The individual losses of actors and employes on wardrobes, etc., is considerable, but the amount cannot be ascertained. Hartman's hotel, J. Kierner, proprietor, 45 and

By telegraph to The Constitution.

SELMA, N. C., November 30.—James Buck owns a small farm near Bodkin, upon which he and his only daughter live. Buck saw the chance of making a profitable crop of tobacco if he could only get some one to assist him and his daughter in the field. Richard Turney, a young man, became enamored of Buck's daughter. The father agreed if the young man would assist him for one year, that he would give him a doubl-barrelled shotgun and his daughter. The term of service expired. Buck gave him the shotgun and called the daughter in to become Turney's wife. She refused, saying that she had already given her heart to another. Turney threatens to sue the old man for $5,000 for breach of contract, and get an injunction restraining the girl from marrying his rival.

THE LATE FIRE.

By telegraph to The Constitution.

OCALA, November 30.—The fire yesterday was occasioned by the upsetting of a kerosene lamp in Benjamin's store. The flames spread to Snowden's drug store and Mrs. Barco's private boarding house and continued to the elegant Ocala hotel. The loss is now estimated to be from three hundred thousand to five hundred thousand dollars. They are now blowing up and pulling down houses. There is no water and no engines. Luther Phipps, a clerk for William Robinson, fell from a third story window and was badly hurt. J. Hess, a drummer for Messrs. Meinhardt Bros., of Savannah, was badly burnt on the face and arms, while blowing up one of the stores, but not dangerously hurt. He is well cared for by friends. Ocala is one of the most thriving towns in Florida, and this calamity occurring at the opening of the season, falls with crushing force upon the community.

FIVE SUPPOSED MURDERERS ARRESTED.

By telegraph to The Constitution.

SHREVEPORT, November 30.—A Mansfield special to the Times says: Sheriff W. P. Sample, of this parish, arrested last night five white men charged with the murder of Judson Scott at Kingston in July, 1881. The parties arrested are Robert Scott, Jr., B. R. Hogan, N. B. Franklin, Jules Baker and Robert Jones. Robert Scott, Jr., is a cousin of the murdered man. He was suspected of the murder sometime since, but came forward and demanded an examination, and after a long and tedious investigation was discharged. B. R. Hogan is well known in this parish, and has served as a deputy sheriff both in DeSoto and Red river parishes. N. B. Franklin is a merchant in Kingston. Robert Jones is a farmer in the vicinity. Jules Baker is a merchant. One thousand dollars reward is offered by the state for the arrest and conviction of the murderers of Judson Scott, and a like amount is offered by the friends of the deceased. It will be remembered that at the time of the murder a negro was suspected and after his arrest taken out of jail by a mob and hanged. It is well known that he was innocent. We cannot learn what the evidence against the parties arrested amounts to. All of the parties are well connected and are respected by all who know them. A preliminary investigation will be held when Judge Logan returns from Coushatta, where he is holding court.

THE HANGING OF STUFIT.

Richmond Stufit, colored, was hanged to day for the murder of his wife, in the presence of 4,000 people, mostly colored. Many colored people came from places hundred of miles distant. Stufit mounted the scaffold firmly, leading in prayer and giving out the hymn himself, asking those present to join. He proclaimed his innocence. The trap was sprang at 1:25 p. m. and stufit was pronounced dead after hanging ten minues. The fall was about eight feet. His neck was broken and only one or two nervous twitches were observed after the drop fell. Just before the hanging Stufit called his cousin to the gallows, and bidding him good by directed that his body be buried on the Egypt plantation, where he was born. Everything passed of quietly and orderly.

Vicksburg, Mississippi.

A STARTLING STORY.

By Telegraph to The Constitution.

VICKSBURG, MISS., November 30.—The woman Mrs. Campbell, who was arrested the other day in Atlanta with a gang of alleged burglars, created quite a stir while in this city last week. It was on her testimony that Officer Price caused Mr. Yeamans, publisher and proprietor of the American Trade Journal, of St. Louis, to be arrested on the charge of compounding a felony. After her husband had been arrested on the charge of picking pockets Yeamans succeeded in recovering from the thief $100 for a friend who had been robbed. Price not only made Yeamans return the $100 to Campbell, but recommended that no warrant be sworn out against him, and the crook was therefore released from arrest and allowed to skip the town. Mrs Campbell remained behind, and, backed up by Officer Price, endeavored to show that Yeamans had extorted hush money from Campbell. This Yeamans indignantly denied, and he was supported by Officer Fay, who said that Campbell showed him a ring which he stated he had promised to give Price. Yeamans was triumphantly acquitted and the woman disappeared. Mrs. Campbell impressed all who saw her as a dangerous female sharp. Her fingers were covered with rings, and across the bosom of her dress were half a dozen leather straps fastened in the middle with a buckle. Price will probably be investigated by the police committee.

THE POLITICAL CASES.

By telegraph to The Constitution.

COLUMBIA, November 30.—The first political case began in the United States court to-day, the room being crowded. The liveliest interest was manifested in the proceedings. The case of the government against John A. Mitchell, colored democrat of Charleston, who took an active part in the last political canvass, was taken up. The indictment charges him with obstructing and intimidating voters. The defense made an argument urging the court to declare the new rule of procedure harmonizing with the recent legislative enactment against the prosecuting officer standing aside jurors. Emory Speer argued against the motion. Judge Bond overruled the motion, Judge Bryan dissenting. The defense then made an effort to invalidate the jury panel on the ground that it was illegally drawn. This, too, was overruled by Judge Bond. The defense sought to quash the indictment but failed. These preliminary skirmishes occupied the court till adjournment. To-morrow the jury will be empaneled and the case will take several days. It is regarded as an important test case. Mr. Speer is disgusted with his reception by the bar, which is anything but cordial. He is determined, he says, to proceed with the cases regardless of public censure.

THE LEGISLATURE.

A joint resolution has been introduced in the legislature and favorably reported on appropriating ten thousand dollars for the defense of the accused in these cases. Nothing but unimportant routine business occupied the legislature to-day.

UNDER THE SEA.

From the Starke, Fla., Telegraph.

During a recent gale the entire Wallack troupe were lost at sea between Key West and Nassau. This troupe gave several entertainments in this city last season. Poor Ryder; he often expressed, in his favorite song, a desire to be a "whale with a great long tail at the bottom of the deep, blue sea." The Wallack troupe was a favorite theatrical combination with our citizens, having exhibited here several times three or four years ago—each exhibition drawing a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Watty Wallack and his wife Fannie were also prominent actors in the troupe, and we regret to learn of their having found a premature and watery grave.

A CHILD BARELY SAVED.

From the Shreveport, La., Times.

An alarm of fire was sounded last night between 12 and 1 o'clock. The fire was found to be located in the Caldwell buildings, on Texas street, between Edward and Marshall streets. It originated in the office of Mr. John Caldwell, in that part of the building adjoining Mitchell's stable and next to Mr. J. H. Stoner's shops and residence. When the alarm was given Mr. Jim Scully and Mr. Faherty went into the Morlet boarding house, up stairs, and pushing or breaking open the doors of the establishment, found a child of 3 or 4 years of age asleep in the back room. Mr. Scully took the child and carried it down through the smoke and flames, which had already broken into the stairway, and brought it safely out of danger. A few minutes later and the child would doubtless have been lost.

THE PESTHOUSE DESTROYED.

From the Knoxville, Tenn., Chronicle.

Yesterday morning about one o'clock J. S. Lamb, who lives on the old fair grounds and has charge of the pest houses used by the city some months ago, discovered the building used for the whites on fire. He rushed out and tried to quench the flames, but his efforts were futile. The parties who had so successfully fired the building, shot several times at Lamb from a distance, some of the shots just missing their mark. During this time the other building had been fired from the outside with a sack of shavings upon which coal oil had been poured, but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done the building. Certain parties are suspected, but no definite proof has been ascertained as to who the guilty ones are. The tracks of a buggy were visible near the burnt building.

A BLOOD CURDLING SIGHT.

From the Oxana, Ala., Tribune.

We witnessed Monday afternoon a blood-curdling escape from a horrible death. As the east bound passenger train on the Georgia Pacific was running at full speed, a few miles this side of Lincoln, a man was discovered lying on the track. As quickly as possible the alert engineer put on brakes, reversed his engine and whistled the alarm. But before the man could move or the train be stopped, the engine and baggage car passed over him. Fortunately his head was lying between the cross ties and his body outside, and by less than two inches his life was saved. The man was drunk and when being hauled out, rubbed his eyes and said: "What in the dickens is the matter with you all anyhow." He was rolled down the bank and the train moved on, leaving him looking after it in an idiotic daze.

Death at midnight plays a dance tune,

The winter wind blows, and the night is all dark.
Moans are heard in the linden trees;
Through the gloom the white skeletons pass,
Running and leaping in their shrouds,
Zig, zig, zig, each one is frisking,
The bones of the dancers are heard to crack.

"What is our life but a series of preludes to that unknown song whose initial solemn note is tolled by death? The enchanted dawn of every life is love; but where is the destiny on whose first delicious joys some storm breaks not—some storm whose deadly blast disperses youth's illusions, whose fatal bolt consumes its altar? And what soul thus cruelly bruised, when the tempest rolls away, seeks not to rest its memories in the pleasant calm of rural life? Yet man allows himself not long to taste the kindly quiet which first attracted him to nature's lap; but when the trumpet the signal gives he runs to danger's post, whatever be the fight which calls him to its lists that in the strife he may once more regain full knowledge of himself and all his strength."

THROUGH THE CITY.

A GLIMPSE OF CURRENT EVENTS IN ATLANTA.

The Day's Doings in Public Offices—The Record of the Courts, the Railroads and the Hotels—Real Estate Operations—Gossip of All Kinds—Items of General Interest, Etc.

The whole of the third floor of the Angier building is for rent. Apply to THE CONSTITUTION office.

The State road rent was paid yesterday. The company never fails to come to time every month with the $25,000.

The registration books will close to-night at 9 o'clock. If you do not register before 9 to-night you cannot vote.

Warrants charging Raphael and King with the larceny of Messrs. Glenn and Orme's watches will be sworn out to-day.

Patrolmen Poole and Aldridge have at the stationhouse a dressing gown, a pair of pantaloons and two pairs of shoes, for whom they want an owner.

Minor, one of the men who was arrested Monday night last, is supposed to be wanted in Buffalo, N. Y., for burglary. There is a reward of $250 for him.

Yesterday Judge Hammond appointed Mr. Sam Parrott receiver for Davenport, Johnson & Co. It was stated in yesterday's CONSTITUTION that such action would be taken.

A thief yesterday entered John Brewster's store on Foundry street, and while Mr. Brewster was busy with a customer, the thief succeeded in getting away with a sack of flour.

George Eskell, a young white man who works at the ax handle factory, had the thumb and two fingers on his left hand ground up in the machinery yesterday. Amputation was found necessary.

Chief Connolly yesterday received a telegram from New York making inquiry about Hardie, one of the seven men who are now in the city prison on account of the recent safe blowings in Atlanta.

C. M. Collier, a farmer who resides near the Clayton county line, was in the city yesterday searching for a bale of cotton which was stolen from his place Wednesday night. Mr. Collier succeeded, he thinks, in tracking the thief to Atlanta.

Night before last Mr. George Morris's residence on Williams street was entered by a burglar, who managed to carry away a purse containing about fifteen dallars. The thief abstracted the purse from Mr. Morris's pantaloons' pocket.

Yesterday while a number of workmen under Mr. Eli Hunnicutt were excavating for laying a gas main at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall, they dug up an old pine stump that was in a state of perfect preservation. Mr. Hunnicutt knew the tree when it was growing. It was a stooping pine that was near the house of an old gentleman named Peacock, grandfather of Dr. Connally, and was cut down in 1845 because it was too near the house. Many people took away pieces of the old stump.

MR. FOUTE'S CALL.

He Has not Made up His Mind What Action He Will Take.

Yesterday a CONSTITUTION man asked Mr. Foute, rector of St. Philip's parish, if he had made up his mind what action he would take in reference to his call to Grace church in San Francisco. He replied:

"I have not yet and will not for some days. I have received no official notification of the call. A telegram came announcing the fact but the formal call has not reached me yet. I have written for other information and will receive a reply in two weeks I suppose. From that information I will, probably, make up my decision."

"At any rate," continued Mr. Foute, 'I will not leave Atlanta for some time."

"You would be greatly missed from St. Philip's," remarked the reporter.

"And I would greatly miss my parish flock," replied Mr. Foute.

"I would be slow to leave now that the church is doing so well, and if I go to San Francisco it will be with a great deal of regret. Many ties bind me to Atlanta, and I will not be hasty in breaking them."

St. Philip's parish is the most desirable in the south outside of New Orleans, and even New Orleans may not be excepted when yellow fever is considered.

THE CONVICTS AGAIN.

The Bond Given by the Marietta and North Georgia Road and the Case Set for Hearing.

Exceptions having been taken upon both sides to the recent decision of Judge Hammond in the matter of the Marietta and North Georgia railroad's quota of convicts, the matter has been taken before the supreme court, and has been set down for a hearing on Tuesday, December 11th. The questions at issue are of great importance to the parties on either side, and the decision will affect the losing side very seriously.

After signing the bills of exceptions Judge Hammond decided to continue the injunction against Principal Keeper Nelms, pending the hearing, unless the Marietta and North Georgia railroad company should make and file in the clerk's office of the superior court of Fulton county, within ten days, a bond in the sum of $2 000, with good and sufficient security, to be judged of by the clerk of the court, conditioned to pay to the complainants whatever amount may be found against it by the jury on the final hearing of the case for the hire of the convicts received by it from the date of the order, and which it may be found should have gone to the complainants. In that event the temporary order should stand dissolved. In the other event the penitentiary companies, by giving a like bond in the sum of $5,000, likewise conditioned, were to receive all the convicts now in the possession of the road and that might be assigned them in the meantime.

Of course, the railroad company has promptly furnished the bond and will enjoy the use of the convicts undisturbed until the final hearing of the case, and indefinitely thereafter should that hearing result in a verdict or decree in its favor.

A KICK ON THE CENTRAL.

A New Regulation That Makes It a Hard Road to Travel.

There is a very unanimous kick by the people all along the lines of the Central railroad against a new regulation which is to go into effect upon that road this morning. The regulation has been duly posted on all the trains and is as follows:

"For all fares collected on the trains, either whole or half, conductors will collect an additional twenty-five cents and issue a rebate check good for that amount and redeemable upon presentation to any station agent of this company.

'Extract from minutes of the railroad commission of Georgia: At the request of the Central railroad and Banking company the commission approve the regulation of conductors collecting twenty-five cents more than the rates allowed under the commissioners' rates and of refunding the same by means of a rebate check."

Some of the conductors of the road are disposed to meet the new regulation as an imputation upon the integrity of their brotherhood on the road, but are willing to abide it on that score conscious of their fidelity and honesty in their dealings with the company. But they declare that it is a most clumsy arrangement and will give them interminable trouble in their labors. They say that the people who travel as local passengers will never be able to get the system straight in their minds, and that almost hourly trouble will arise over it during the transit of trains.

For instance the local fare between many stations is from 25 to 50 cents only and most of the passengers, especially negroes, board the trains from one station to another, having only the exact amount of fare. Under this new regulation the conductor would have to bounce all such from the train. Many stations have no ticket office, and at many stations tickets cannot always be had in time for the trains, day or night.

The road claims this as a just regulation to the road and liberal to the public, as by it the public always gets the benefit of the three cents rate, and lose nothing but the use of the extra 25 cents between stations. The regulation is intended to compel the purchase of tickets.

It remains, of course, to be demonstrated in actual operation how the new rule suits all parties.

OFF TO INDIANA.

Windy Dick, the Pickpocket Leaves for Indiana in an Officer's Care.

"Windy Dick," the clerical looking confidence man and pickpocket, took his departure for Indiana, yesterday afternoon, via the Western and Atlantic railroad. Yesterday morning at 4 o'clock Mr. O. Taylor, of LaFayette, Indiana, reached Atlanta. He was armed with a requisition for Preston, and soon after breakfast he visited the city prison where he made himself known by exhibiting his authority. Immediately after introducing himself to Chief Connolly Mr. Taylor was conducted to the cell in which Preston has been confined since his arrest. The recognition was mutual, and Preston seemed glad to meet Mr. Taylor, to whom he said:

"I would rather go to LaFayette with you than with any one else."

Mr Taylor returned to the chief's office, where he was cordially greeted by Mrs. Preston. Mrs. Preston quickly detailed to Mr. Taylor her arrest and detention and was profuse in her abuse of the Atlanta officials.

Mr. Taylor said that Mrs. Preston was not wanted and Chief Connolly turned to the pickpocket's wife and said:

"Mrs. Preston, you are at liberty to go. I am sorry we have been compelled to detain you, but your associations aroused our suspicion. For what trouble we have given you I am sorry, but the circumstances justified the arrest."

Mrs Preston arose with a bewitching and captivating smile, and going to her valise, began arranging her notions; while doing this she said:

"I know, chief, that you have been kind to me, and I appreciate your kindness I told you there was nothing against me. But there are some policemen here that are regular 'smart Alecks' and I just want to get a chance to get even with them."

After gathering her effects together, Mrs. Preston left the prison. But before leaving she made things a little warm about the place. The first contest in which she was engaged was with her attorneys. When these gentlemen ascertained that Mrs. Preston would be released they put in an appearance and demanded their fee for their services. One hundred and fifty dollars was asked, but Mrs. Preston positively refused to pay that amount, declaring that it was extortion. However, Mr. Glenn withdrew his fee and Mrs. Preston compromised with Mr. Irwin by paying him fifty dollars.

Mr. Taylor paid to Captain Aldridge the two hundred dollars reward and about 2 o'clock took Preston to the union passenger depot. Preston was attired in the same neat black suit and wore a pair of heavy, but not handsome bracelets on his wrist. He kicked when Mr. Taylor asked him to hold up his hands and made all sorts of promises to keep the handcuffs off, but Mr. Taylor knew Preston to be an ugly customer and decided to take no chances with him. Before the train left the city the police learned certainly that two confidence men, who have been in the city ever since Preston and his wife came, but who have avoided the officers, were going on the same train and that their object was Preston's release. The officers made every effort to arrest Preston's friends, but without success. Mr. Taylor was notified of the facts and Mounted Officer Dick Clark was detailed to accompany him. Should Preston's friends attempt his release they will be given a warm reception. Preston as certained by some means that his associates would accompany him, and as soon as he heard it his countenance brightened up and a smile played over his face.

At the Union passenger depot Mrs. Preston circulated freely. Some how her identity became known and she was quite and object of curiosity, but despite the many eyes that were constantly upon her she manifested no embarrassment. Before leaving the city she exhibited her diamond rings to an officer and smilingly asked:

"Do you want them?"

Being answered in the negative she declared that she never had any fear of losing them, and when asked how she had concealed them she seemed to relish telling the story. She had a breastpin composed of two parts, which were joined together by twisting the two parts in opposite directions. Both parts were hollow, and into these cavities she dropped the diamond ring. When screwed together detection was almost impossible. To the same gentleman Mrs. Preston made several important revelations, which may have been true, but if they were untrue she has gathered a most accurate knowledge of the stationhouse building and its surroundings during her brief imprisonment. She openly declared that on the night of her arrest she was communicated with

BY PARTIES ON THE OUTSIDE,

who are friends to herself and husband. Touching the communication she said:

"All I had to do was to hoist a window, go out on the balcony and receive a note from the window in the second floor of the hotel next to the prison. And here is the note," she said, holding up a bit of paper.

"Let me see it?" said the officer, his surprise depicted on his face.

"So, I thank you," was her answer, which was accompanied by a sly wink directed at her interrogator.

"But how did you know that any one was at the window with a note?" asked the officer.

"Well, if you think I am going to tell you all you are mistaken. But what would you think if I were to tell you that my rings were locked in an iron safe in this city during part of my imprisonment?" she asked.

"Were they?" asked the officer.

"Never mind, just now," was the reply. "However, my imprisonment has never bothered me. I knew you could not keep me or get anything I had. My only trouble was on Dick's account."

Whether or not Mrs. Preston adhered strictly to the truth is not of course known. But that she did have her diamonds with her while in prison there can be no doubt. On Thursday night Captain Aldridge had an interview with Mrs. Preston during which she informed the captain that she had purchased these diamonds with her own money. She then said to the captain:

"Will you telegraph to the man from whom I bought them if I will pay the expenses Just ask him if Mrs Preston did buy diamonds for a certain sum on a certain day. Would his reply satisfy you?'

"I guess it is useless to telegraph, as the sheriff will get here to-morrow."

"Well, will you take my diamonds and keep them for me, if I tell you where they are? I believe I can trust you."

"Where are they?" asked the captain; and this question caused Mrs. Preston to change her mind, and after that she refused to talk about the diamonds But there can be no doubt about Mrs. Preston's careful secretion of the precious stones.

On the same night that Captain Aldridge had his interview with Mrs. Preston he had a talk with Preston, during which Preston offered him $2,000 to release him. Mr. Taylor says that Preston's return to Indiana will be a welcome one. He declares that Preston is a bad man. His father is a wealthy and influential citizen of Omaha, Neb. Preston's story concerning the robbery of Congressman Howard is true, and that is the offense for which he is wanted.

THE QUESTION OF COAL.

WILL WE HAVE CHEAPER COAL FROM ALABAMA?

A Constitution Man Takes a Turn About Town and Talks to the Coal and Railroad Men—What Mr. Joseph M. Brown Says—Mr. L. S. Brown and Mr. Griffin Speak.

For many years it has been generally believed, and confidently predicted, that the completion of a railway line from Atlanta to Birmingham would cause a material decline in the price of coal. It is well known that the Birmingham coal district covers a large area, and its supply of fuel will not be exhausted for generations to come. The effect of bringing Atlanta into direct communication with this immense field, people naturally supposed, would be to create a sharp competition at this point, resulting in a precipitate tumble in the price of coal both for manufacturing and domestic purposes.

The first part of the programme, viz.: railway connection with the Birmingham district, is now an accomplished fact, but the second part remains one of the problems yet to be solved by the future. The Georgia Pacific brings in eight or ten car loads of coal per day, but this has no effect upon the situation. Hearing some talk concerning the rates fixed by the new road a CONSTITUTION man, in the course of his rounds yesterday, collected a few facts, figures and opinions bearing upon the subject.

A TALK WITH MR. GRIFFIN.

Mr. Griffin, the general freight agent of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, was first visited.

"Our rates on Coal Creek coal," said Mr. Griffin, "are $1.80 per ton for steam purposes, and $2 for domestic or grate coal. The Newcomb and Jellico are carried for $1.85, steam, and $2 05, domestic. Montevallo is $1.75 for both steam and domestic. The rates on coal from the Broken Arrow fields are $1.40, steam, and $1 60, domestic."

"Those are the rates from the mines to Atlanta?"

"Exactly."

"Have the rates increased or decreased since last year?"

"There has been a considerable decrease. Last year our rates on Coal Creek were $2, steam, and $2 30, domestic. There were no rates on Newcomb and Jellico, as the line was not open. Montevallo was $2 for steam and domestic. So you see that quite a reduction has been made."

"What do you think of the present rates?"

"Well, I think they are pretty low—low enough."

"Do you think there is any probability of a reduction in the near future?"

"Doubtful."

MR. JOSEPH M. BROWN.

At the Western and Atlantic railroad depot the scribe sought further information from Mr. Joseph M. Brown, general freight agent of the road. In reply to a question Mr. Brown gave the following as the rates per ton on the Western and Atlantic:

Dade coal and Castle Rock, steam $1 40, domestic $1 60; Whiteside, steam $1 50, domestic $1 70; South Pittsburg, steam $1 50, domestic $1 70; Vulcan mines, steam $1.50, domestic $1 70; Rathburn (Soddy mines), steam $1 50, domestic $1 70; Dayton, steam $1 50, domestic $1 70; Spring City, steam $1.50, domestic $1.70; Glen Alice, steam $1 50, domestic $1.70; Rockwood, steam $1.50, domestic $1.70; Oakdale Junction, steam $1 60, domestic $1 80; Glen Mary, steam $1.81, domestic $2.01; Helenwood, steam $1.90, domestic $2.01; Flat Rock, steam and domestic, $2 01; Greenwood, steam $2.15, domestic $2 35; Birmingham, steam $2; Sewanee, steam $1.83, domestic $2.03.

"How do these rates compare with those of last year?" asked the reporter, as he glanced over the figures.

"We have made no change since last year," was the reply. "The through rate to Atlanta is reasonably low as it stands, and our rates to local stations are the lowest of any road in the southern states. This policy has greatly increased the business of the road."

"Do you think these rates will stand?"

"That is the outlook for some time to come?"

MR. L. S. BROWN.

Mr. L. S. Brown, general freight agent of the Georgia Pacific, was the next party seen. After the reporter had stated the object of his visit, the agent said:

"We ship coal from the Birmingham coal fields to Atlanta at $1 50 per ton, steam coal, and $1.70 domestic. At present, however, there is no domestic or grate coal, and the steam coal is all contracted for. After awhile the mining operations will be extended and a greater supply furnished."

"What about the domestic coal?"

"It is there, plenty of it, but it has not been developed around Birmingham. There are also large fields of it in the Cahaba district, on our line of road, but these mines are still undeveloped."

"People were under the impression," said the man with the note book, "that coal would drop when the Georgia Pacific reached Birmingham."

"The road has done its part," replied Mr. Brown. "The present rates are low, but, as I said before, the mines have long time contracts for their steam coal, and the domestic is not developed yet, so there is no perceptible increase in the supply thrown upon the market."

"Do you think that the Georgia Pacific will stick to its present rates?"

"That is the way it looks to me. In the matter of the supply, though, there will be a great change in the future. When we fill the gap in the road and extend it to Columbus; when the Cahaba fields are developed and when we reach the Walker county fields in Mississippi, then lookout for such an output of coal as was never seen before. The supply is unlimited.

WHY COAL IS HIGH IN ATLANTA.

The railroad men interviewed by the reporter were all unanimous in the opinion that the high price of coal in Atlanta is not in any manner due to the freight rates but is entirely owing to the profits exacted by the dealers. For instance, coal can be had in the Birmingham district at $1 25 per ton the freight on it is $1.50, allowing it to be laid down in Atlanta for $2.75 per ton. Now the dealers here want from $6 to $7 per ton for it. A reduction in freight rates, it has been found, does not reduce the price of coal in the dealers' hands. Last year, when the Western and Atlantic and the Cincinnati Southern roads reduced 60 cents a ton on their rates, the dealers stood by their former prices. The State road will now lay coal from the mines it reaches down in Atlanta for, on an average, $4 50 a ton first cost, and freight included. It will easily be seen from these figures that the dealers are making a good thing of it. This is the view the railroad men take of the business, and people who buy coal will doubtless agree with them.

THE NEW CAPITOL.

Specimens of Granite that Have Come In for Inspection by the Commission.

The coming meeting of the capitol commissioners, which takes place on the 5th, will be one of considerable interest as there are several matters of importance to come before the board.

Yesterday a CONSTITUTION man was in the executive office when Mr. Harrison remarked:

"Come into the archives' room and I will show you the specimens of marble and granite that have been sent in for the inspection of the capitol commission."

In the room of dingy records the specimens were found and presented a very handsome appearance. The gray of the granite, the snow white marble and the rich color of the red sandstone looked well as the blocks lay beside each other. The samples were from almost every imaginable place and were in square blocks about 8x8 inches in size. One side of each block was polished so as to show how it would take polish, and each was marked with the name of the quarry from which it was sent.

Mr. Harrison said:

"Here are three samples from the Rockland granite company, of Rockland, Maine. One is the Harbor, one is the Jonesboro red granite, and the other is Sprucehead granite. These were the first samples that came to us. Here is some Beaver Dam marble, from Baltimore county, Maryland, Here is a piece of granite from the Richmond granite company; here is another from the Westham granite company, of Richmond. Here is some Pickens county marble, and here is a piece of Bedford oolitic limestone from Indiana."

"What is this?" asked the reporter, pointing to what appeared to be marble but was as black as night.

"That is black marble or limestone from the Sandy Hill quarry, in New York."

"And what is this?" asked the scribe, picking up a block of varigated granite.

"That is what is called red granite, and is from the Syenite granite company, of Francois county, Missouri. Here is some Hurricane iron granite from Rockland, Maine, and here is a sample of Potomac red sandstone, from Washington city. A part of the Smithsonian institute is built of it."

"Any Stone Mountain granite?"

"We have just received samples of Stone Mountain granite. Among the other samples that we have are the Virginia state granite from Chester county, Va., Crescent marble from Knoxville, Dorchester freestone from New Brunswick, Canada, Corshill red sandstone from Scotland, and Morgan Bay granite from East Blue Hill, Maine."

"Do you know of any others that are coming?"

"Yes, the governor has received notice that a sample of Hollowell granite from Maine, the same that was used in the customhouse, is on its way. We have also received notice of a specimen of red granite that is on its way from Genoa, Italy. The man who sends wants to supply columns of that granite, and proposes to make columns of proper proportions and seventeen feet high at $375, or to make other sizes at proportionate rates. Samples continue to come in from day to day and the prospect indicates that there will be plenty to select from. The commission will meet on the 5th, and several matters of interest will come up."

ACTORS' SUITS SETTLED.

The Cases of the "Hearts of Oak" Company Compromised and Paid.

A couple of years ago the scenery and baggage car of Herne's "Hearts of Oak" theatrical company was burned at Jonesboro and all its contents destroyed. Suits for damages were instituted against the Central railroad company. One by Brooks & Dickson, the managers, was brought in the United States court and determined about one month ago in their favor with a verdict of some $1,400. To avoid a new trial they wrote off one-half the amount and received their proven damages. The other cases were on behalf of the individuals of the company for loss of personal baggage, and these were brought in Clayton superior court. There were fifteen suits, represented by Colonel R. T. Dorsey, of this city, who was pushing their prosecution with great vigor.

After the determination of the case in the United States court several of the plaintiffs in the Clayton county suits visited Atlanta as members of "The Mountain Pink" combination. Overtures for a compromise of the cases were made to them and have finally resulted in the settlement of the entire batch of suits. The terms of the compromise were that the Central railroad company would pay all costs of suit and 80 per cent of the amounts claimed by each of the suitors. As the average claims were about $500 each, except in one or two minor cases, the total amount paid to the attorney for the actors and actresses was $4,385, besides cost of suit, some $200 additional.

Among the professionals who thus get pay for their wardrobes are: Genevieve Rogers, Florence Ellis, James A. Herne, Frank E. Aiken, Harry Mainhall and Ed. Bert.

A DISHONEST CLERK.

A Clerk Systematically Robs His Employer But Gets Taken In.

Day before yesterday a white man about fifty years of age was given a cell in the city prison. To the clerk he gave his name as George B. Zane, and the charge entered against him was larceny.

About two months ago Zane came to Atlanta, as he avers, from Florida. He is a man of good address and pleasing appearance and about six weeks ago secured a position as salesman at J. M. High's dry goods store on Whitehall street. Zane soon proved himself an expert handler of goods and in a few days was considered a fortunate selection. About three weeks ago Mr. High became satisfied that his stock of towels, napkins, handkerchiefs, gloves, etc., was being pilfered. A careful watch was kept until a few days ago suspicion was directed against Zane. An investigation was entered into and day before yesterday a trap resulted in securing convicting evidence against Zane. At his boarding house a trunk and valise containing about one hundred dollars worth of laces, gloves, etc., were found. Patrolman Chambers and Cashborn were detailed to work the case and now Zane is in the city prison and the stolen goods are there too. Zane admits the theft, but says he can assign no cause for it.

Subsequent to Zane's arrest it was ascertained that his right name is King, and that he is wanted in Binghampton, N. Y., for arson. There is a reward of $1,000 for him, and last night Chief Connolly received a telegram from the prosecuting attorney, at Courtland, N. Y., to hold King, as an officer, armed with a requisition, had already started for him. It is understood that King fired a store in Binghampton King sent a package of his stolen goods by express to his wife in New York.

The $2.50 City Directory.

We are very much encouraged at the success at tending yesterday's canvass for our $2 50 directory yesterday.

The people are so accustomed to paying $4 and $5 for directories that they cannot understand how a directory can be published for half the price.

Our guaranty on this point is simple and conclusive.

"If our directory, when it is offered for your acceptance, is not equal in every respect—and superior in many—to the directory of last year, or any directory ever printed here, we hereby agree to give you the book and ask no compensation."

With this guaranty before him, why should any man pay double price for a directory?

Our canvassers will call on you.

Another Manufacturing Enterprise.

As a manufacturing point and distributing centre, the fame of Atlanta has extended far into the north, as indicated by the recent arrival here of A. Corbin, Jr., Esq., president of the St. Lawrence manufacturing company, of St. Lawrence county, New York.

Mr. Corbin has come to Georgia with a view to organizing a company at Atlanta or Macon for the manufacture of the implement now famous throughout the north and west, known as the "Corbin Disc Harrow."

This implement is claimed is not only the most perfect pulverizer of the soil in use, but sows and covers grain as perfectly as any drill. It also takes the place of the plow on many soils and especially on corn or stubble land and it is said that its use will increase the average yield of grain fully twenty per cent.

The Corbin Disc Harrow is being manufactured by five large companies, including the great Keystone manufacturing company of Illinois, and a large foreign demand for it has been inaugurated as shown by shipments to England, Russia, Mexico and Australia.

Upon invitation of Commissioner Henderson Mr. Corbin has placed a full-size implement on exhibition in the agricultural deparment at the state-house, where it can be examined by those interested. A model or miniature harrow can be seen at the Markham house, where Mr. C. is stopping.
